Iran Goes Back Again To Normal

Bazaar Shops Are Open and Government Is Cracking Down Upon Reds, Nationalists

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 25 (AP) — Iran's capital continued its slow progress toward post-Mossadegh normality today. Shops in the big native bazaar again were open, the new government was reported cracking down on Communist and Nationalist backers of the ex-premier and there was talk of new parliamentary elections.

The new prime minister, Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, announced his government would continue negotiations ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh started with the Soviet Union 12 days ago.

Zahedi told newsmen Iran would go slow, however, in resuming diplomatic relations with Britain. The break by Mossadegh last October followed collapse of negotiations over the nationalized properties in Iran of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

"This matter needs more study; until these studies are carried out, no decisions will be taken," Zahedi said.

Won't Renew Law

But Zahedi said he would not renew a law Mossadegh pushed through six months ago offering Iran's oil at half the world market price. The law is about to expire. It had attracted only a few Italian and Japanese purchasers. With the bulk of the world's oil tankers controlled by the British or their commercial allies, most would-be buyers have had no way to haul oil away from Iran since the British blockaded its shipment.

The government cracked down yesterday on bazaar leaders who had ignored Zahedi's call for a return to normal business and had kept the shops closed. Seven of the quarter's 12 top men were arrested. The other five brought flowers to Police Chief Mohammed Daftari, promised him their support and were received by the Shah.

Soon after the shops reopened. Despite the protection of hundreds of armed soldiers, however, little business was transacted.

Arms Are Found

The strongly pro-government paper Mardasia reported that police had found a "great deal" of arms and ammunition in raids on Tehran homes of several members of southern Iran's Khashghai tribe. Mossadegh drew much support from the tribal area since his ouster and arrest.

The government also was reported to have raided centers of the outlawed Communist Tudeh party, seizing stamps labeled "Iranian Republic" and vast quantities of Red propaganda.

Zahedi said the negotiations with Russia would reopen "soon" and his cabinet "will continue the attitude taken by the former government."

The talks began Aug. 13 but bogged down after two sessions over Russia's refusal to discuss revision of her 1921 treaty with Iran. The treaty gives the Soviets the right to move troops into Iran if any foreign power makes the country its "base for aggression" against the Russians.

The Iranians also are seeking 11 tons of gold they claim for services given to Russian troops during World War 2 and settlement of their longtime claims to various pieces of land along the Russian-Iranian frontier.

Reds Report Locations Of 33 Mills

Moscow Says Factories Will Be Given Over to East Germans on January 1

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Communists announced today the names and locations of the 33 Russian-managed mills and plants that Moscow says will be turned over to the East German government when reparations end Jan. 1.

They represent the last direct Soviet foothold in German industry.

The West German Ministry for All-German Affairs, in an analysis of east zone industry, said the Soviet plants have been geared for production of war materials. Western observers anticipated they would be nationalized as soon as they are turned back to Premier Otto Grotewohl's government.

They also anticipate that the plants will continue to turn out weapons and military supplies for the Red armies.

Analysis by Experts

Analysis by West German and allied economic experts shows:

1. The plants produce vast quantities of war material, including tanks and tank parts, small arms, mortars, shipyard parts, cranes, chemicals and synthetics.

2. Approximately 250,000 highly skilled East German workers are employed in the 33 plants.

3. The chain of industrial mills was so organized that it fed the mechanized Red army in East Germany with most of its equipment, except for artillery. Jet aviation fuel, synthetic rubber and gasoline for tanks and armored cars, have been turned out in big quantities.

The Russians confiscated the largest producing plants in the east zone in 1945 and set up a chain of 99 "Soviet Corporations" for a giant reparations grab. Sixty-six of the smaller mills were turned over to the East German Communist regime early in 1952 and now are "peoples owned"—nationalized.

To Be Nationalized

Berlin quarters expect the other 33 plants to be nationalized as soon as they are turned back to the Germans.

The biggest are the Krupp-Gruson Steel Works in Magdeburg, once a mighty arm of the Krupp gunmaking center in the Ruhr.

Western quarters said the shift of the plants from Soviet to East German Communist hands would bring about little fundamental change.

But economic experts believe the Red German regime will get a big boost toward a healthier economy by relief from outright reparations. These sources expect the industrial output to go to

Vigorous Purge Hits All in East Germany

Reds Say 400 POWs Vote to Remain in Communist Area

More Than Hundred Yanks Are Returned Today, With 133 More Due on Monday

Panmunjom, Aug. 24 (AP)—One hundred thirty-six more Americans and 264 other UN prisoners of war streamed back to freedom today but the Reds said 400 of the POWs still in stockades may not come back because they have chosen Communist rule.

Allied sources confirmed that the Red statement was handed over at a meeting of the Prisoner Repatriation Committee in Panmunjom last night. There was no word of a breakdown of nationalities among the 400.

Today's release of nine American officers and 127 enlisted men boosted to nearly 2,000 the number of Americans liberated in three weeks of the prisoner exchange.

One hundred thirty-three more will be freed tomorrow.

Many Americans repatriated earlier have told of some fellow captives who have elected to remain behind, either because they had turned informer and feared retaliation or had swallowed Communist propaganda.

Come Back Quietly

In sharp contrast to Communist prisoners moving northward, today's liberated Americans came back quietly. A few shouted jubilantly, but most were silent, simply happy to return from bleak North Korean camps. They appeared in good health.

Communist prisoners delivered by the UN command continued their violent demonstrations. Their return was interrupted three times when North Koreans spit in the faces of two Allied officers.

Beside the 136 Americans, the Reds Tuesday handed over 250 South Koreans, 8 Canadians, 3 Australians, 2 Dutch and 1 Greek.

The return of the Dutch soldiers was a surprise. The Reds had claimed they didn't hold any prisoners of that nationality. Delivery of eight Canadians raised to 24 the number returned, six more than the Communists had said they would give back.

No Explanations Given

The Reds gave no explanation for the additional returnees.

With 10 days of the massive swap remaining, the Reds have returned 1,995 of the 3,313 Americans they said they held.

The nine American officers—all infantry or field artillerly—returned today were of low rank and there was no indication when the Communists would hand over top Allied officers held captive.

One of the Americans liberated Tuesday, Cpl. Henry H. Kern of Hardin, Mont., was listed by the Defense Department as having been killed in the closing days of the war.

The death report was based on casualty reports from the 8th Army and interviews with members of Kern's squad.

Kern's father, who had been notified that his son was dead, was bewildered at the news.

"I hope this is right and the other wrong," he declared.

Peiping radio said the Reds had notified the UN command of the burial places of 1,651 allied soldiers who died while prisoners.

The Reds recently turned over a list of men they said died in captivity, but it fell far short of the thousands of UN troops still unaccounted for.

One Man Is Sentenced to Life as One of Leaders; Workers Refuse Dues

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP)—A wave of new arrests in connection with Germany's June 17 revolt was reported today as the Communists announced an alleged leader of the uprising had been sentenced to life imprisonment.

The West Berlin radio said Communist zone security police had arrested 64 persons suspected of taking part in the revolt. They were bagged in three steel plants and an artificial rubber plant.

A few hours earlier the German Communist ADN News Agency announced that Gerhard Roemer, 26, had been sent to jail for life as a leader of the rebellion.

According to ADN, Roemer burst into Magdeburg jail brandishing a rifle, demanded the freeing of all prisoners and later threatened Russian tanks moving into his factory with his rifle.

New Kind of Revolt

The West Berlin radio also reported a new kind of east zone revolt against Communist rule. The broadcast said 400,000 workers since June have refused to pay dues to their Communist trade unions.

Red authorities plan to stymie this financial rebellion by withholding union dues from wages, the radio added.

The East German Communists today ordered a sweeping new purge throughout the party, down to the lowest card carrying comrade.

Will Be Screened

The party paper Neues Deutschland said everybody would be rigorously screened to determine his part in the June 17 workers revolt.

The probe is to include all party organs, functionaries and individual members.

The aim, it was explained, was to root out "reactionary and hostile elements" who had wormed their way into the ranks of the faithful. In particular the action was to be aimed at "capitulators" who joined with the mobs who fought Russian tanks with stones to show their hatred of the Red regime.

Ban Is Lifted

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Despite the objections of the police department, heads of an anti-noise campaign and some taxi-owners, Mayor Vincent Impellitteri has lifted a four-year-old ban on taxi drivers playing radios in their cabs. The mayor's decision, reached at a conference last week, was officially made an order yesterday by reluctant Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan. It allows the driver to play the radio when cruising without a fare, or while he has a passenger—unless the passenger objects. Under the old rule, if a cab had a radio only the passenger could play it. It had to be silent when the driver was alone in the cab.

Didn't Know About Bank

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The president of a bank returned from Europe today and said he learned only a few days ago that one of its branches was robbed last week of $191,280. Arthur T. Roth, president of the Franklin National Bank, arriving aboard the Queen Mary, fold newsmen he heard about the holdup while speaking by ship-to-shore telephone to a friend. Roth described his bank in Franklin Square, L. I., as the fastest growing in the United States. Its Floral Park branch on Long Island was robbed last Tuesday by a man who is still at large.

Air Force Plans To Drop Officers

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—The air force will have to drop about 6,500 reserve officers, it says, regardless of whether some of them may be inconvenienced by early return to civilian life.

About 12,500 reserve officers will be let out in the next 60 days, with an estimated 6,000 ending their service voluntarily, to make way for young men coming out of the reserve officers training corps (ROTC) program. The air force announced several weeks ago that the action would be necessary.

McCarran Does Not Expect Action by President on Law

Eisenhower, However, Has Asked Review of Legislation for Fairness

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D.-Nev.) said today he is convinced President Eisenhower "will not personally spearhead a movement to alter or change the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act."

The President has called for revision of the law.

McCarran, co-author of the statute, told newsmen he has a "complete belief" the President will not "intervene" with the present law, passed in 1952 over the veto of former President Truman.

The act has been under fire by some congressmen and others ever since on grounds that it unfairly discriminates against certain foreign nationals and that the provisions aimed at barring possible subversives are unduly harsh. For instance Eisenhower on April 27 said one complaint made to him was that the law fails to define political offenses, that it makes an alien subject to deportation for subversive activities even though they were terminated years ago, and that a consul has to determine "by his own mental processes" whether

Road Work Is Held Up Until Ready

BA Approval, State Advertising to Follow Delivery — Loughran Sets No Time

Plans for the eastern approach of the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge are progressing toward completion, but have not been submitted to the New York State Bridge Authority, it was learned today.

The plans are being prepared in the office of Dr. D. B. Steinman, consulting engineer as well as bridge designer, and inquiries today resulted in no definite indication as to when the bridge authority will receive them.

Must Give Approval

The bridge authority must first approve the plans before they are sent to the state public works department in Albany for the advertising for bids.

A contract was awarded recently to Philip Totonelly, Inc., of Newburgh, for the clearing and rough grading of the western approach and work is now under way on that project.

The western approach extends eastward from route 32 for less than a mile. The approach on the Rhinebeck side will join with Route 9.

James F. Loughran, of this city, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, indicated today that the authority had received no word as to when the plans might arrive from the consulting engineer's office.

Justice Permits Record Review

State Court Official Acts in McManus Case at Canandaigua

Canandaigua, Aug. 25 (AP)—Justice H. Douglass Van Duser of state Supreme Court signed an order today permitting counsel for Fred E. McManus, 18, awaiting trial on a charge of first-degree murder, to examine records of psychiatric examination of the defendant.

McManus, of Valley Stream, was adjudged sane after examination at Willard State Hospital.

Maurice Chaccia of Geneva, McManus' court-appointed attorney, sought access to the records. McManus changed his plea to innocent by reason of insanity Aug. 19. He was arrested March 31.

Request Not Opposed

The prosecution did not oppose the defense request for access to the medical records. But it opposed a defense request for certified copies of the records. Van Duser denied this today.

The Long Island marine is accused of the fatal shooting of William A. Braverman, 19, a Hobart College freshman who picked up McManus as a hitch-hiker last March 27. Braverman's home is in Rochester, N. Y.

McManus also is accused of four other slayings, two in Illinois and two in Minnesota, as he started on a cross-country dash in an auto identified as Braverman's. He was accompanied by Diane Weggeland, 16, of Rochester. He told police officers he wanted to marry Diane, since adjudged a wayward minor.

McManus is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 8 in Ontario County Court on the charge of slaying Braverman.

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—The position of the treasury August 21, 1953: Net budget receipts $260,362,345.01. Budget expenditures $251,442,516.70. Cash balance $8,330,619,920.17. Order on Returnees Angers Big Crowd

Alameda, Calif., Aug. 25 (AP)—A near riot was touched off at Alameda Naval Air Station yesterday when the navy barred wives, sweethearts and other relatives from welcoming three shiploads of returning Korean war veterans.

A restraining line of Marine guards held back some 200 greeters as 2,340 soldiers debarked from the attack transports Henrico, Lenawee and Begor.

The crowd became angry and forced its way past the Marine line. Then it ran into another group of leatherneck sentries.

Finally the navy—after blaming the army, then retracted that—reported it had erred and the relatives could visit the troops.

But by that time hundreds of troops had passed on toward Camp Stoneman and processing for leaves, leaving many relatives stranded without a greeting.

Will Demand That India Sit on Communist Side of Table at Peace Parley

United Nations, Aug. 25 (AP)—A South Korean boycott of the Korean peace conference threatened the United Nations today. Syngman Rhee's representatives said they couldn't attend a parley with India present unless the Indians sat on the Communist side of the table.

Foreign Minister K. T. Pyun and Col. Ben C. Limb, South Korea's permanent observer at the UN, declared last night: "The Republic of Korea finds it impossible to collaborate with India on the same side."

"If India wants to sit on the Communist side, all right," added Pyun. "We are not vetoing who will be at the peace conference. But we certainly can say whether we be there, and we certainly may walk out or boycott the conference if the UN goes ahead and votes to sit India on our side."

Attacks India

Pyun earlier yesterday had bitterly attacked India before the UN Assembly's political committee as an appeaser of the Communists. "Not only trafficking with the Communists but intriguing with them to make the free world look contemptible."

His violent blast visibly rocked India's chief delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon.

The Indian may reply late today or tomorrow. The committee scheduled two sessions of debate, but 11 speakers—including British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky—were ahead of Menon.

India's candidacy for the conference is backed by Britain and three other commonwealth coun-

Can't Move Wrecked Auto

This badly damaged 1946 convertible will remain right where it is until damage to his property is paid for, if a 91-year-old Woodstock-West Hurley road resident has his way.

State police of the Kingston station reported that the automobile, owned by Fred Alton Gardner of 65 Gage street and driven at the time by Clarence Louis Gardner, 24, of 69 West Union street, ran off Route 375 about midnight Sunday, broke a telephone pole, two guard posts, a tree and a mail box and came to a stop against another tree on the lawn. Troopers said the driver was not injured. He claimed he lost control of the car when he was blinded by the lights of an on-coming automobile, troopers said.

Asked this morning why the automobile was still on the lawn and had not been towed away, state police said that the property owner, known to them only as "Charley," a 91-year-old man, had forbidden it to be moved until he is compensated for the damage to the property. (Freeman Photo)

Sale of Local Shipyard Is Reported by Several Sources

Sale of the Rondout Shipyard Corp., of 590 Abeel street, headed by Lansdall Christie, to Philip Roache, of the Sound Shipbuilders, 124 Lax avenue, College Point, L. I., was indicated in reports from several sources today.

The yard, which built and repaired wooden scows has been inactive for the past four or five years. One source indicated that the reported new owner had bought the property on speculation.

Roache, who could not be reached by telephone up to Freeman press time today, is president of the Sound Shipbuilders, and one source mentioned the possibility of the reopening of the yard to build wooden barges for the New York Trap Rock Co.

Another report indicated that skilled workmen for the building of such wooden craft were scarce in the area, and that because of this, Roache might have abandoned such plans.

The reported property transfer was supposed to have been made about a month ago.

'Very Pretty' Stenographer Is Sought in Girl's Slaying

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 25 (AP)—A 'very prety," 25-year-old stenographer sought for questioning in the slaying of a 14-year-old friend may be broke and unable to travel, veteran detectives hinted today.

Police who worked through the night seeking Miss Mildred McDonald to interview her about the bullet-and-torch slaying yesterday of Mary Di Rocco, said the 25-year-old woman 'definitely was in a Brighton (Boston) bar last night looking for a drink for a nickel because that's all the money she had."

They added "the bartender definitely identified her from a picture we showed him."

Police also have established, they said, that the McDonald woman recently had obtained a .22 calibre pistol, a type frequently used for target shooting and a weapon which can be obtained easily in most any sporting goods store.

Detectives, and members of both families, say that Miss McDonald, a state employe, had kept company with Joseph Di Rocco, 25, the victim's brother, for about three years until he married another girl four months ago.

Medical Examiner Andrew D. Guthrie said five slugs from a .22 calibre target pistol entered the Di Rocco girl's body—in the heart, the head, jaw, abdomen and left wrist.

In addition, he said, there was a slash on the girl's throat as if made by a razor or a sharp knife.

Heavy motor oil had been poured over the girl's body and newspapers and a magazine, placed around the girl, had been set ablaze.

Police said the motor oil did not catch fire because it burns only under extreme high temperature.

The burning papers caused only a slight scorch on the girl's side before the fire was extinguished by Robert Di Rocco, 17, another of the victim's brothers, who was attracted to the cellar by the smell of smoke when he arrived home.

Robert said he passed Miss McDonald on his front steps and chatted a few minutes before he entered his family's modest two-family house.

He said she was just leaving the house and appeared calm as she strode away.

Angelo Di Rocco, the slain girl's father, said he went home to lunch and found Miss McDonald there with his daughter.

He told police he asked Miss McDonald what she was doing there and said she replied: "I just came over for a while."

The father said he advised her to leave and that she answered: "I'll go after I have another cigarette."

He said he left to return to his job as a truck driver after having a sandwich. Di Rocco said his wife was out shopping at the time.

The slain girl was a niece of Gabriel Piemonte, a Boston city councillor and former president of that body who served as mayor when the city's chief executive was out of town.

Police said discovery of a sixth .22 calibre slug in the mattress of a bedroom leads them to believe the attack on Mary Di Rocco began in the apartment and that the girl was slain from point plank range when she ran to the cellar.

A police check showed Miss McDonald left her job two hours before she was seen in the Di Rocco home after telling her superior she was not feeling well.

Her father is a teacher at the Northeastern Junior High School.

The order to pick up Miss McDonald for questioning in the slaying was sent to police departments throughout New England by Somerville Police Capt. LeRoy V. Pierce.

The order described the girl as "five feet, four inches, 113 pounds, with large hazel eyes, short and curly brown hair, long eye lashes and very pretty."

The message warned police to "use caution—may be armed."

The party paper Neues Deutschland said everybody would be rigorously screened to determine his part in the June 17 workers revolt.

The probe is to include all party organs, functionaries and individual members.

The aim, it was explained, was to root out "reactionary and hostile elements" who had wormed their way into the ranks of the faithful. In particular the action was to be aimed at "capitulators" who joined with the mobs who fought Russian tanks with stones to show their hatred of the Red regime.

Ban Is Lifted

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Despite the objections of the police department, heads of an anti-noise campaign and some taxi-owners, Mayor Vincent Impellitteri has lifted a four-year-old ban on taxi drivers playing radios in their cabs. The mayor's decision, reached at a conference last week, was officially made an order yesterday by reluctant Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan. It allows the driver to play the radio when cruising without a fare, or while he has a passenger—unless the passenger objects. Under the old rule, if a cab had a radio only the passenger could play it. It had to be silent when the driver was alone in the cab.

Didn't Know About Bank

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The president of a bank returned from Europe today and said he learned only a few days ago that one of its branches was robbed last week of $194,280. Arthur T. Roth, president of the Franklin National Bank, arriving aboard the Queen Mary, told newsmen he heard about the holdup while speaking by ship-to-shore telephone to a friend. Roth described his bank in Franklin Square, L. I., as the fastest growing in the United States. Its Floral Park branch on Long Island was robbed last Tuesday by a man who is still at large.

Air Force Plans To Drop Officers

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—The air force will have to drop about 6,500 reserve officers, it says, regardless of whether some of them may be inconvenienced by early return to civilian life.

About 12,500 reserve officers will be let out in the next 60 days, with an estimated 6,000 ending their service voluntarily, to make way for young men coming out of the reserve officers training corps (ROTC) program. The air force announced several weeks ago that the action would be necessary.

McCarran Does Not Expect Action by President on Law

Eisenhower, However, Has Asked Review of Legislation for Fairness

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D.-Nev.) said today he is convinced President Eisenhower "will not personally spearhead a movement to alter or change the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act."

The President has called for revision of the law.

McCarran, co-author of the statute, told newsmen he has a "complete belief" the President will not "intervene" with the present law, passed in 1952 over the veto of former President Truman.

The act has been under fire by some congressmen and others ever since on grounds that it unfairly discriminates against certain foreign nationals and that the provisions aimed at barring possible subversives are unduly harsh. For instance Eisenhower on April 27 said one complaint made to him was that the law fails to define political offenses, that it makes an alien subject to deportation for subversive activities even though they were terminated years ago, and that a consul has to determine "by his own mental processes" whether

BA Approval, State Advertising to Follow Delivery — Loughran Sets No Time

Plans for the eastern approach of the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge are progressing toward completion, but have not been submitted to the New York State Bridge Authority, it was learned today.

The plans are being prepared in the office of Dr. D. B. Steinman, consulting engineer as well as bridge designer, and inquiries today resulted in no definite indication as to when the bridge authority will receive them.

Must Give Approval

The bridge authority must first approve the plans before they are sent to the state public works department in Albany for the advertising for bids.

A contract was awarded recently to Philip Totonelly, Inc., of Newburgh, for the clearing and rough grading of the western approach and work is now under way on that project.

The western approach extends eastward from route 32 for less than a mile. The approach on the Rhinebeck side will join with Route 9.

James F. Loughran, of this city, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, indicated today that the authority had received no word as to when the plans might arrive from the consulting engineer's office.

Justice Permits Record Review

State Court Official Acts in McManus Case at Canandaigua

Canandaigua, Aug. 25 (AP)—Justice H. Douglass Van Duser of state Supreme Court signed an order today permitting counsel for Fred E. McManus, 18, awaiting trial on a charge of first-degree murder, to examine records of psychiatric examination of the defendant.

McManus, of Valley Stream, was adjudged sane after examination at Willard State Hospital.

Maurice Chaccia of Geneva, McManus' court-appointed attorney, sought access to the records. McManus changed his plea to innocent by reason of insanity Aug. 19. He was arrested March 31.

Request Not Opposed

The prosecution did not oppose the defense request for access to the medical records. But it opposed a defense request for certified copies of the records. Van Duser denied this today.

The Long Island marine is accused of the fatal shooting of William A. Braverman, 19, a Hobart College freshman who picked up McManus as a hitch-hiker last March 27. Braverman's home is in Rochester, N. Y.

McManus also is accused of four other slayings, two in Illinois and two in Minnesota, as he started on a cross-country dash in an auto identified as Braverman's. He was accompanied by Diane Weggeland, 16, of Rochester. He told police officers he wanted to marry Diane, since adjudged a wayward minor.

McManus is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 8 in Ontario County Court on the charge of slaying Braverman.

Will Demand That India Sit on Communist Side of Table at Peace Parley

United Nations, Aug. 25 (AP)—A South Korean boycott of the Korean peace conference threatened the United Nations today. Syngman Rhee's representatives said they couldn't attend a parley with India present unless the Indians sat on the Communist side of the table.

Foreign Minister K. T. Pyun and Col. Ben C. Limb, South Korea's permanent observer at the UN, declared last night: "The Republic of Korea finds it impossible to collaborate with India on the same side."

"If India wants to sit on the Communist side, all right," added Pyun. "We are not vetoing who will be at the peace conference. But we certainly can say whether we be there, and we certainly may walk out or boycott the conference if the UN goes ahead and votes to sit India on our side."

Attacks India

Pyun earlier yesterday had bitterly attacked India before the UN Assembly's political committee as an appeaser of the Communists. "Not only trafficking with the Communists but intriguing with them to make the free world look contemptible."

His violent blast visibly rocked India's chief delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon.

The Indian may reply late today or tomorrow. The committee scheduled two sessions of debate, but 11 speakers—including British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky—were ahead of Menon.

India's candidacy for the conference is backed by Britain and three other commonwealth coun-

Order on Returnees Angers Big Crowd

Alameda, Calif., Aug. 25 (AP)—A near riot was touched off at Alameda Naval Air Station yesterday when the navy barred wives, sweethearts and other relatives from welcoming three shiploads of returning Korean war veterans.

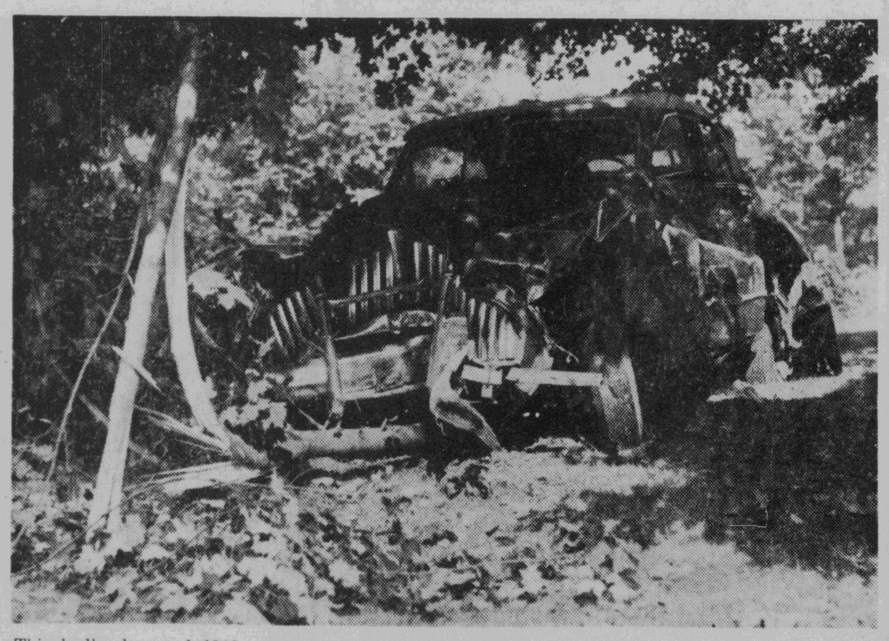
A restraining line of Marine guards held back some 200 greeters as 2,340 soldiers debarked from the attack transports Henrico, Lenawee and Begor.

The crowd became angry and forced its way past the Marine line. Then it ran into another group of leatherneck sentries.

Finally the navy—after blaming the army, then retracted that—reported it had erred and the relatives could visit the troops.

But by that time hundreds of troops had passed on toward Camp Stoneman and processing for leaves, leaving many relatives stranded without a greeting.

Can't Move Wrecked Auto



This badly damaged 1946 convertible will remain right where it is until damage to his property is paid for, if a 91-year-old Woodstock-West Hurley road resident has his way.

State police of the Kingston station reported that the automobile, owned by Fred Alton Gardner of 65 Gage street and driven at the time by Clarence Louis Gardner, 24, of 69 West Union street, ran off Route 375 about midnight Sunday, broke a telephone pole, two guard posts, a tree and a mail box and came to a stop against another tree on the lawn. Troopers said the driver was not injured. He claimed he lost control of the car when he was blinded by the lights of an on-coming automobile, troopers said.

Asked this morning why the automobile was still on the lawn and had not been towed away, state police said that the property owner, known to them only as "Charley," a 91-year-old man, had forbidden it to be moved until he is compensated for the damage to the property. (Freeman Photo)

Sale of Local Shipyard Is Reported by Several Sources

Sale of the Rondout Shipyard Corp., of 590 Abeel street, headed by Lansdall Christie, to Philip Roache, of the Sound Shipbuilders, 124 Lax avenue, College Point, L. I., was indicated in reports from several sources today.

The yard, which built and repaired wooden scows has been inactive for the past four or five years. One source indicated that the reported new owner had bought the property on speculation.

Roache, who could not be reached by telephone up to Freeman press time today, is president of the Sound Shipbuilders, and one source mentioned the possibility of the reopening of the yard to build wooden barges for the New York Trap Rock Co.

Another report indicated that skilled workmen for the building of such wooden craft were scarce in the area, and that because of this, Roache might have abandoned such plans.

The reported property transfer was supposed to have been made about a month ago.

'Very Pretty' Stenographer Is Sought in Girl's Slaying

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 25 (AP)—A 'very prety," 25-year-old stenographer sought for questioning in the slaying of a 14-year-old friend may be broke and unable to travel, veteran detectives hinted today.

Police who worked through the night seeking Miss Mildred McDonald to interview her about the bullet-and-torch slaying yesterday of Mary Di Rocco, said the 25-year-old woman 'definitely was in a Brighton (Boston) bar last night looking for a drink for a nickel because that's all the money she had."

They added "the bartender definitely identified her from a picture we showed him."

Police also have established, they said, that the McDonald woman recently had obtained a .22 calibre pistol, a type frequently used for target shooting and a weapon which can be obtained easily in most any sporting goods store.

Detectives, and members of both families, say that Miss McDonald, a state employe, had kept company with Joseph Di Rocco, 25, the victim's brother, for about three years until he married another girl four months ago.

Medical Examiner Andrew D. Guthrie said five slugs from a .22 calibre target pistol entered the Di Rocco girl's body—in the heart, the head, jaw, abdomen and left wrist.

In addition, he said, there was a slash on the girl's throat as if made by a razor or a sharp knife.

Heavy motor oil had been poured over the girl's body and newspapers and a magazine, placed around the girl, had been set ablaze.

Police said the motor oil did not catch fire because it burns only under extreme high temperature.

The burning papers caused only a slight scorch on the girl's side before the fire was extinguished by Robert Di Rocco, 17, another of the victim's brothers, who was attracted to the cellar by the smell of smoke when he arrived home.

Robert said he passed Miss McDonald on his front steps and chatted a few minutes before he entered his family's modest two-family house.

He said she was just leaving the house and appeared calm as she strode away.

Angelo Di Rocco, the slain girl's father, said he went home to lunch and found Miss McDonald there with his daughter.

He told police he asked Miss McDonald what she was doing there and said she replied: "I just came over for a while."

The father said he advised her to leave and that she answered: "I'll go after I have another cigarette."

He said he left to return to his job as a truck driver after having a sandwich. Di Rocco said his wife was out shopping at the time.

The slain girl was a niece of Gabriel Piemonte, a Boston city councillor and former president of that body who served as mayor when the city's chief executive was out of town.

Police said discovery of a sixth .22 calibre slug in the mattress of a bedroom leads them to believe the attack on Mary Di Rocco began in the apartment and that the girl was slain from point plank range when she ran to the cellar.

A police check showed Miss McDonald left her job two hours before she was seen in the Di Rocco home after telling her superior she was not feeling well.

Her father is a teacher at the Northeastern Junior High School.

The order to pick up Miss McDonald for questioning in the slaying was sent to police departments throughout New England by Somerville Police Capt. LeRoy V. Pierce.

The order described the girl as "five feet, four inches, 113 pounds, with large hazel eyes, short and curly brown hair, long eye lashes and very pretty."

The message warned police to "use caution—may be armed."

Survey Shows Crowding

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Count on waiting 11½ months before going to trial if you're thinking of starting a civil court case with a jury. The wait is only 5.7 months for non-jury cases. A survey by the Institute of Judicial Administration Inc., at New York University yesterday reported these average delays for principal state trial courts in 97 cities. The survey showed the most crowded calendar is in Brooklyn's State Supreme Court, where the wait is 53 months. The quickest legal action is in Oklahoma City's District Court with a one-month delay.

It costs you and other Americans over $50 million each year just to put out forest fires. And what about the loss of timber, the damage to watersheds, the loss of beautiful recreational areas and wildlife? You pay a staggering price for all this. It's money out of your pocket. Out of your pocket also come the very things—the matches and smokes—that, carelessly used, cause forest fires. The prevention of forest fires is in your hands. Be extra careful this year.

Civil Defense Duties Here Carried On by Few Workers

A relatively few Kingston and Ulster county men and women are giving thousands of hours of their time and a great deal of effort to Civil Defense.

These people, driven by some compulsive force, might get up at the unearthly hour of 3:30 a. m. to stand their 4 to 6 trick on the spotters' post, week after week. Or they might leave their business to go running off to some Civil Defence planning meeting, or spend hours working out a detailed solution to some problem that is purely imaginary.

Why does this handful of spotters, deputy directors and a few others keep at it?

Is it a lot of foolishness? The majority of residents seem to think so. If they do not express that thought in words, at least they do by their attitude and their apathy.

Those are the things that are bothering local CD heads, as well as those all over the country.

In their own minds, they are convinced that the nation must keep itself prepared against a surprise attack. But for the few who remain on the job, it's discouraging.

If they ever felt the job had some measure of compensation in its excitement, its feeling of self-exaltation, that feeling has worn off. All that is left, after months of service, is a feeling that one is doing his bit to help protect his neighbors.

And it's tough, when one's neighbors pooh-pooh the work. Ask any Civil Defense worker.

At this writing, it would be doubtful whether the Kingston Ground Observers Post could be kept operating for more than one more week, except for one factor.

Post Will Not Close

That one factor is the determination of Mrs. George Dewey Logan, who very vehemently said last week: "That post will not close." And it probably will not, even if every other post in the country shuts down, as long as the state CD heads want it to remain open and as long as Mrs. Logan and her handful of faithful workers are able to ride the elevator to the roof of the Governor Clinton Hotel. It will not close as long as there are people like the woman who last month put in 40 hours at the post (theoretically, no one should have to serve more than two hours a week), or as long as there are people like the service manager for a local automobile dealer who faithfully stands his early morning shift and whose wife and son also serve, or like the local milkman who serves two to four hours a week before starting on his milk route.

But there is little support from the community. Business men continue with their business, while women stand their early morning tours of duty for them. "That's no place for a woman at night," according to Mrs. Logan, the post supervisors, who adds, feelingly, "The men of this community ought to be ashamed of themselves."

The spotters' post was activated July 14, 1952, and has been in continuous operation—24 hours a day, seven days a week—ever since. "We have never called in once and said, 'going off duty,' not even for a second," says Mrs. Logan.

The Ground Observation Corps is the only segment of Civil Defense that is activated. In other branches, only the top personnel are busy, laying plans for swinging into action if and when needed.

This takes time. A number of men are giving that time, men like Col. Allan L. Hanstein, county defense director; like Howard C. Shurter, Sherwood Davis, John G. M. Hilton, H. Edgar Timmerman, Cluett Schantz, Arthur Chipp, Ernest Steuding and Roland Green, Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, John Pope, Edward Murray, all deputy directors, and a number of others.

Civil Defense Problem

State defense officials give these men a problem, such as the one they are now working on: "An atom bomb hits New York city on Sept. 23. Hundreds of thousands of evacuees plug the highways. An estimated 25,000 of these finally get to Ulster county and you're supposed to take care of them. Many of them are wounded or sick. What are you going to do about it?"

So these men and others have to sit down and work out detailed plans. Their report, Col. Hanstein promises, will be "voluminous." Parts of it may be made public following the exercises of Sept. 23 to 25.

To prepare these plans, these men have had to confer with other defense officials in the seven-county support area, which includes Ulster, Orange, Sullivan, Rockland, Putnam, Dutchess and Westchester. They are having one of these conferences this Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Is this necessary, or is it a bunch of grown men acting like children playing "war?"

No one presumes to know whether the United States will be involved in a war or not. The Civil Defense personnel all say they share everyone's fervent hope that there will be no war.

All this Civil Defense activity, at this time, is "insurance," in the words of Defense Director Hanstein, who knows quite a bit about insurance.

"It is insurance against what might happen," Hanstein said, adding that if it is not needed, so much the better, but if it ever is needed it is good to have. There isn't time to buy an insurance policy after the fire trucks arrive, and there won't be time to set up a smoothly functioning Civil Defense team after the bomb drops.

Certainly the world news has not been encouraging. The peace in Korea is an uneasy one.

Must Not Relax

President Eisenhower, Governor Dewey and many others have warned that the United States must not relax its defense efforts, and this month the announcement was made in Moscow that the Russians have exploded a test hydrogen bomb of "great strength."

Col. Hanstein and other defense heads in Ulster county realize that the American people traditionally "come through" in any emergency, and that if the country were to be attacked, there would be many volunteers for Civil Defense work.

Unless there is a nucleus of training leaders—a cadre—to get the influx of volunteers functioning efficiently at the time of emergency, mere numbers of workers would be useless, Col. Hanstein points out.

That is what the Ulster county defense organization wants at present—a trained cadre plus a fully manned ground observation post, as requested by the Air Force. "We are not going out at this time to enlist dozens of block wardens," Hansen said.

What CD does need are aircraft spotters, and public understanding of and cooperation with its over-all task.

CALICO DARLINGS IN DENTAL DUO—Reason for all the merriment is that calico-shirted Diane Corrington, 18, of Oro Grande, Calif., and her sidekick, "Calico Dolly," are going to the San Bernardino County Fair. Opening Aug. 26, at Victoryville, Calif., featured event of the fair will be a "Burro Derby." Mascot Calico Dolly has no kicks about the event.

Anastasia Tries To Lose Guard of New York Police

New York, Aug. 25 (AP) — Anthony (Tough Tony) Anastasia, a Brooklyn waterfront boss, is fighting in court for removal of his round-the-clock, 14-man police guard.

Argument on his petition was scheduled for today before State Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Brenner in Brooklyn.

Anastasia, who claims he can take care of himself, complains that the constant presence of police interferes with his business and private life and is a waste of the taxpayers' money.

Talking with a reporter, he asked "how would you like to have your daughter's boy friend come calling and have him frisked by cops?"

Assigned After Break

The guard was assigned to Anastasia, an insurgent leader in the AFL International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), after an open break between him and the top command of the ILA headed by President Joseph P. Ryan. Authorities said they had an underworld tip that Anastasia was marked for death.

Anastasia, declaring he had not been threatened, verbally objected when the guard was assigned several weeks ago.

Yesterday, Anastasia's counsel, Joseph Petito, obtained a court order directing Police Commissioner George P. Moaghan and Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald to show cause why the guard should not be removed. Assistant District Attorney Aaron Koota was to oppose Anastasia's move in court today.

'Can't See No Reason'

Interviewed by newsmen over the telephone after filing of the court papers, Anastasia said: "I can't see no reason to keep this detail. It is costing the taxpayers $2,000 a week. Why? There's no danger as far as I'm concerned. Suppose there is. I think I can maneuver myself."

Anastasia, who did not say how he figured the $2,000-a-week cost, declared the police detail would be "of better service to the public."

Anastasia is business agent of ILA Local 327-1 and has been seeking to expend his power in other ILA locals in Brooklyn. He and Ryan have clashed a number of times, and Ryan and his colleagues in the ILA executive council have challenged Anastia's recnt election as boss of Local 327-1.

Drivers Ordered To Vote or Suffer Union Suspension

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Striking sand and gravel truck drivers were ordered last night by their union president, Dave Beck, to vote by secret ballot on their employers' latest wage offer or suffer suspension from the union.

The drivers, members of Building Material Teamsters Local 282 have been on strike since July 3.

Beck, president of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers, said in a statement that last week an authorized union committee promised both Mayor Impelliteri and concrete supplies that a secret vote would be taken on the companies' offer.

The men were offered a 40 cents an hour wage increase but turned it down by voice vote.

Beck said in his statement:

"When you make a commitment, then you carry that commitment out. I will use all the constitutional powers of the general president's office to see to it that local unions keep their word.

"I am not telling the men how to vote, but only that they carry out their authorized negotiators' pledge to do so."

PARTY HARMONY IN CONGRESS

There can be no question that the 1954 campaign for control of Congress is already under way. Both major parties are hard at it.

So far, naturally, the argument revolves around what the 83rd Congress accomplished. The Republicans, in command of both houses, paint a glowing picture of achievement. The Democrats not only belittle the record; they contend that what little was done was made possible only through strong Democratic support.

Let's take a look at these opposition contentions first. Later on we can examine the GOP declarations.

The record of Senate and House votes demonstrates conclusively that the Democrats did indeed provide the Eisenhower administration with decisive aid on many occasions.

It would require complete cynicism to deny that much of this assistance was lent to the President's programs because the Democratic supporters genuinely believed in them. No doubt many do hold such beliefs.

Moreover, evidence is strong that many of these men want the United States to have an effective government. With both houses held so narrowly by the GOP, the Democrats were aware that heavy opposition from them would spell stalemate and inaction.

Yet it would be unwise to assume, therefore, that the Democrats were uniformly high-minded fellows, acting from the noblest of motives. The fact is, they are still quite sensitive to the practical political aspects of the situation.

But practical politics dictates pretty much the same course. For one thing, many of the programs voted on this year are essentially those drafted and carried out under two Democratic presidents. Most Democrats voted for them. They cannot now vote against them without reversing themselves and appearing to repudiate Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman.

For another, the Democrats remember that the Republican strategy of vehement opposition to nearly all Roosevelt-Truman programs paid slim political dividends for 20 years. They seem bent on more selective bombardment of majority party targets.

Thirdly, the Democrats know that Mr. Eisenhower is at the very peak of his popularity in the country. They can imagine that it might be political suicide to attack him personally or get too far from the policies he espouses. Some hints are abroad that certain Democrats might even try to run next year on the President's coattails.

It is no disparagement of Democratic cooperation to serve the national interest to point out that Democrats, like Republicans, are still alert to the tactics of their trade.

ABOLISHING SLUMS

Norwalk, Conn., has found one way to wipe out slums. When the city finds buildings still occupied despite the many violations of the building, fire and health codes, it condemns the structure and requires so many costly alterations that the owner perforce consents to abandon it. New families are also kept from moving in. This simple idea is the brain child of Mayor Irving C. Freese, who has held office since 1947.

Many cities have buildings unfit for human occupancy simply because public authorities do nothing about them. Often the excuse is advanced that if they were torn down, the residents would have nowhere else to go. On the other hand, so long as they are let alone, they will get worse and nothing will be done to find the residents better homes.

Owning slum property without an attempt to improve it, is not a creditable way to make money, and does not deserve the protection of the law.

NEW SLAVERY

To be thrown into slavery is a fate that might happen to anyone whomsoever in a Communist state. The new book, "A New Slavery," relates the story of a 60-year-old Hungarian farmer, arrested, because as the notation about him said, "There is good reason to believe that, if left at large, he would engage in activities detrimental to state interests from an economic standpoint."

THE BALANCED BUDGET

While Congress is not in session and the President is vacationing in Denver, the taxpayer might try thinking out problems for himself unaffected by the explosive pressures put upon him by interested parties. The balanced budget affects the value of our money—not what might be called the nation's money but what the missus has in her pocketbook when she goes to the store.

Everybody agrees that the budget should be balanced. President Eisenhower, Secretary of the Treasury, George M. Humphrey, Director of the Budget, Joseph M. Dodge, most of the Senators and members of the House of Representatives agree that the budget should be balanced. The question is, when—when is it to be done?

H. R. 2 is a bill to forbid the government to expend more money than it takes in. If H. R. 2 were passed, there would be no need to increase the limit for the public debt. It is a measure to balance the budget. The Director of the Budget, Joseph M. Dodge, wrote to Representative Clare E. Hoffman, Chairman of the House Committee on Government Operations, opposing H. R. 2 on the following grounds:

"As I indicated in my letter of April 3, I do not believe that the fundamental problem in the control of federal expenditures can be resolved by arbitrarily limiting expenditures to an amount that does not exceed revenues in any given period. For this reason, I would recommend against favorable consideration of the amended version of H. R. 2."

Precisely how a budget is to be balanced without limiting expenditures to income is a little difficult to understand. As a matter of fact, that is all that a balanced budget does in government, in a private business or in a home. Mr. Dodge says that he favors a balanced budget.

Hoffman's committee reports:

"Not a single witness appearing before the committee, and not a single communication received by the committee, whether from the executive departments or the public, minimized the necessity for balancing the budget."

The Secretary of the Treasury wrote:

"The Treasury Department is in sympathy with the principle of statutory guidelines for bringing expenditures and revenues into balance. The Department would, however, recommend against the relatively inflexible expenditure ceiling provided for in these bills."

Apparently everybody favors the idea but is opposed to doing it. The reason may be that the Administration cannot foretell what will happen, but then that has been true during most of our lives. We have become so entangled in the affairs of the world that we do not know a few days ahead where we are. For instance, no one could foretell the French strikes or what they would do to this country. Shall we, on account of them, have to take over France's troubles in Indo-China or in Morocco? And what is that to cost?

George M. Humphrey said in a speech:

". . . History demonstrates that whenever currency deterioration has started it tends to continue at an ever-increasing rate, the faster the further it goes. Unless courageous, determined, corrective action is taken in time it finally speeds entirely out of control and finishes in utter collapse. The first half of the depreciation of our dollar has already occurred. The programs and conditions which this Administration inherited would have accelerated that pace. Stopping that spiral is imperative."

But how is that to be done without balancing the budget? The larger the national debt, the less the currency is worth in purchasing power. How is the debt ever to be reduced if the budget is not to be balanced? This is one of many public problems from which it is impossible to take a vacation.

When I go down to the village to the general store these days, the conversation is always about high prices. So I get into the argument and make the point that if you call a dollar 50 cents, then the prices are about right. Maybe it is a false argument, because nobody seems to want to call a dollar 50 cents. Yet, why not? It is a fact.

Apparently most Americans do not desire to face facts. And they do not want to face one of the most unpleasant facts which is that if the national debt goes higher and the budget remains unbalanced, money will be worth even less and prices will go still higher.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

BREAST GROWTHS MAY DEVELOP CANCER

I have written before about the three women who, discovering a lump in the breast, decided to say nothing about it to the family or physician as they did not wish to disturb the plans of the family for a long holiday of travel. They were afraid the lump meant cancer of the breast. On returning home after their holiday, they consulted their physicians only to find that the lump in each case was a harmless enlarged milk gland. They had endured all these weeks of worry without cause as the removal of the milk gland by surgery was a simple matter.

When a growth is harmless it is called "benign," whereas if it is cancer it is called "malignant." That these benign or harmless growths may later develop into cancer is stated by Drs. E. F. Lewison and J. G. Lyons in the "American Medical Association Archives of Surgery," Chicago.

Between 1925 and 1942, 451 patients with benign breast diseases were operated upon at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. The progress of 85.4 per cent, or 385 patients, was successfully followed over a 1-to-25-year period survival span. The average follow-up period was 13.6 years with 75 per cent of the patients being examined periodically from 10 to 25 years. There were three forms of benign breast disease: 200 of one type, 153 of another, and 32 of still another type. The average age of these 451 patients was 36 years.

Simple surgical removal was performed in 92 per cent. Benign breast disease returned in 13 per cent of the 385 cases followed. Cancer of the breast developed in 7 (that is, less than 2 per cent).

What do we learn from these figures based on careful and scientific survey and follow-up of this large number of patients with benign breast disease?

1. Drs. Lewison and Lyons state that the chances of acquiring breast cancer appeared to be about 2½ to 3½ times greater in this series of cases than in the general female population in the same age range.

2. This study is in accord with the current knowledge which accepts a "predisposition" of patients with benign breast disease to breast cancer. Thus, all patients with benign breast disease should be regularly examined at periodic intervals.

I have related frequently the story of the three women who believed they had cancer of the breast and found that they had only benign breast disease; I believe I should give the above information to my readers so that those who have benign or harmless breast growths removed should, as suggested by these surgeons, be regularly examined at periodic intervals.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—The United States now has a firm commitment from the 16 United Nations allies in Korea, authorizing the bombing of Chinese Communist air bases north of the Yalu river if peace talks break down and fighting is resumed on the Korean peninsula.

This is the interpretation put on one section of the 16-power declaration of Aug. 8, pledging quick UN resistance against any new Communist aggression in Korea. It declares:

"The consequences of such a breach of the armistice would be so grave that, in all probability, it would not be possible to confine hostilities within the frontiers of Korea."

The inside story of how this sentence got into the 16-power declaration provides the necessary background for its meaning.

During the armistice negotiations, the question of repairing bombed-out airfields in North Korea came up. During the fighting, the U. S. Air Force, naval and UN aviation kept these fields under constant attack. The result was that these fields were useless to the Communist air forces. Their planes never were able to damage UN forces south of the battle line.

General Mark Clark and the UN commanders were naturally anxious to keep these fields from being put back into usable condition after the armistice. So a clause in the cease-fire agreement was proposed to restrict the building up of air bases by both sides during the armistice and the peace talks.

Communists Protested

The Communists protested vehemently. United Nations negotiators, anxious to get a cease-fire agreement, put pressure on the United States to relax on this airfield repair restriction. And to comply with the UN wishes, the U. S. gave in.

This surrender of principle was made only for a price: if the Reds broke the armistice and fighting resumed, the UN allies would agree to waive their previous restriction against bombing north of the Yalu river. And so the deal was made.

It was covered by the 16-power statement that if there is a renewal of armed attack, challenging again the principles of the United Nations, the fighting would not be confined to Korea.

This declaration puts the United Nations in an extremely strong bargaining position. If the Reds want to resume the fighting, they now have fair warning of what to expect. They will no longer have their sanctuary in Manchuria from which to attack.

In a number of other respects, this 16-power declaration to the United Nations, plus the mutual defense agreement negotiated by the Republic of Korea President Syngman Rhee and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are advantageous to the U. S.

U. S. and UN military commanders are not too unhappy at having a large number of Chinese Communist troops pinned down in North Korea. This does provide a constant threat of new aggression and while an agreement to get the Red China armies out of Korea is hoped for eventually, forces there now cannot be moved for a new aggression elsewhere, against Indo-China, Thailand, Burma, Nepal or even India.

Build Up South Korea

In the meantime, the job of building up the South Korean army to the previously announced force of 20 divisions can be carried on. The United Nations and the Chinese Communists are restricted by the armistice from bringing new troops into Korea except as replacements. But there are no restrictions on building up either the North or South Korean forces.

No new military equipment can be brought in. But equipment now in the hands of UN troops could be given to Republic of Korea forces. In the same way, Chinese Communist equipment could be given to the North Koreans. Then if and when a peace settlement is reached, the foreign troops evacuated from Korean soil would go out empty-handed, for re-equipment elsewhere.

There is now believed to be little danger that President Rhee will start up the war again on his own. The threat was a shrewd bargaining gesture to get all that he could from the United States in a mutual security pact. But now that the pact is initialed, there is no incentive for Rhee to restart the war.

This pact does not obligate the United States to maintain troops in Korea. This subject is left to mutual agreement after the pact has been ratified by the U. S. Senate and Korea.

Furthermore, the U. S. is not bound automatically to resume fighting if the peace conference produces no results within 90 days. The agreement is that the U. S. and ROK will each take a new look at the end of 90 days. If the UN allies believe there is some hope of achieving peace within 180 days or longer, the talks go on.

Limited Distribution Hurts Full Facts All Should Know About Communist Conspiracy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 25 — For nearly three years a Senate Subcommittee and its staff have worked intensively to piece together the facts concerning the Communist conspiracy which has been actively at work inside the United States government during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Now the final report is ready for the public to read, but how are the American people going to know about it?

The newspapers have printed accurate though brief summaries, but the report itself, with excerpts from sworn testimony, has to be read in full to get the real picture of how far some American citizens have gone to betray their own country.

The Senate Subcommittee itself can make available only about 15,000 copies, and these will be furnished free as long as they last to anyone who writes to the Internal Security Committee, Room 413, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

But such a limited distribution cannot begin to be effective. Not long ago the "Americans for Democratic Action," a radical organization which has been waging a fight against Senator McCarthy, announced that it would distribute about 100,000 copies of the Senate Subcommittee report concerning alleged financial irregularities by the Wisconsin senator in income tax matters. The report itself is full of innuendo but offers no proof of its charges and is plainly a political document. Nevertheless the Americans for Democratic Action said it was a congressional report which needed a wider distribution.

One wonders if the Americans for Democratic Action now will buy from the government printing office—at a cost of only a few cents a copy—about 100,000 copies of the Senate Subcommittee report which tells the story of the Soviet spy rings inside the American government. The ADA claims to be anti-Communist, so this affords it an opportunity to strike a blow at Communists in America.

This is an important report for the ADA to distribute also because that organization has been making, as one of its principal arguments, the point that the FBI can handle the Communist problem by itself and that it isn't necessary for the investigating committees of Congress to do what they have been doing about it. Incidentally, there is a movement afoot to get various national organizations to adopt resolutions declaring that congressional committees are "invading" the executive branch of the government. Already the AFL Teachers Union has adopted one of those resolutions, and a group of so-called "liberals" in the American Bar Association are this week attempting to press for passage of a similar resolution.

The new report from the Internal Security Committee, however, gives chapter and verse on the record of the FBI in calling attention to the presence of Alger Hiss and other Communists inside the government as early as 1941. But neither the Roosevelt nor the Truman administrations did anything about the Hiss case till the House Committee on Un-American Activities, with the help of some confessed Communists uncovered the plotters.

The Internal Security Committee's pamphlet is fascinating reading. It should be read by every citizen who likes to argue about McCarthyism and about the problem of Communists inside our government. By reading such a report, the citizen who makes generalized statements about the "methods" of congressional committees is likely to learn something also about the "methods" by which high officials of our government from the White House down were duped and misled by the Communist spies inside the last two administrations.

Maybe the Sunday sections of some newspapers will print the Senate Internal Security Committee's report in full and maybe some citizens will ask Congress to have more copies printed so that the whole tragic story may be more widely known and the American people alerted to the subtle and deceptive ways whereby ostensibly patriotic American citizens betray their own country and shape the policies of their own government so as to favor the interests of the Soviet government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I thought my vernal essays on pitched ball had used up the ballistics of inanimate objects in flight, but an alchemist in Las Vegas, Nev., now tells me he can come out on a point with an ordinary pair of store-dice and make it, hundreds and hundreds of times. Millions of times! This means that under his tutelage my practitioner can bust any game in Vegas and go on to rattle our national economy and the financial structure of the whole world.

Well, I have known individuals, all more or less touched, who had systems which, in extended trials, backed by enough money, could beat the races, roulette or conventional stud. I used to have a theory about No. 17, right in the middle of the layout, which I put to a long test with two-bit markers one night in Carter's sawdust joint in old Miami Beach when Tex Rickard was taking his first peek at dreamland. But I ran out of what it took just before the ball plopped in. There was nothing wrong with the system. My nerve gave way, that's all. You ought to be a little drunko to string along with a system.

Jack Dempsey was against the wall at another table and a big crowd gathered to watch him break the house. He couldn't lose for winning. But when I bought a stack and started to follow his play he whispered "nix, nix! this doesn't go. Get away!"

I think we should do something about this character in Vegas before he puts this thing into circulation. You can't tell what he might do. He could break every regiment, every division in the army. Every ship's company on every battlewagon. The man says he doesn't want to make money out of it. If he did he would just go down to Wilbur Clark's or the Last Frontier and take it all. No rubbing, no chafing, no moaning or groaning. There is no such thing as ten the hard way. The man says there is no hard way. But he wants to release the system to all the people at the same time in which case he would nullify the whole thing because nobody could get faded. So people would just drift off to the slot machines and the tiger's cage. Then where would we be?

This character says it is all done through a hitherto unknown law in the field of ballistics. But ballistics runs into philosophy and physics and chemistry as I learned when I poked up the savants by saying that no pitcher in baseball ever could throw a hop. I got letters all the way from India talking about friction, impetus, air-pressure and vacuum. It got so that I finally swept a bushel of mail off the desk and started off on something else. I think Einstein wrote some of the deals I got in that mail. They made doodles, dingbats and pin-wheels and the gist of it all was that a ball would jump from a flat course if a pitcher with enough swift could ever learn how.

Dice have got flat, slippery sides. Sometimes they slide, although, if they do, disorder is in order and windows get broken. This set me to thinking of the time George Raft beat the chump in Leo Durocher's Little Pied A Terre in New York. This smart New York sucker was such a hero-worshipper that he insisted on standing at the great celebrity's elbow and never thought to shove down a few steps and grab the dice for a look.

It made me think of a sad episode in the old 7th Field when a sergeant cleaned out the regiment and was fixing to buy himself out of the army and start a little place when captain's inspection turned up a catalog from a manufacturer of toys and novelties in Kansas City. The manufacturer offered one breed of dice that couldn't miss and others that couldn't do anything else but. They didn't give that sergeant a court but they did have to patch him together when the brave cannoneers got through with him.

A few years ago I did a trick in Kansas City, delighting my devotees with discreet essays on the restaurant where the waitresses at the business men's lunch peeled off something with each course and the hardy bankers had a habit of pointing to the whole menu and saying, "bring me a double order of that!" One day I met up with a young reporter on the old K.C. Post. I said the one thing I most wanted to see was the factory where this novelty company had made the artillery sergeant's dominoes. Their motto was "Fool Your Friends! Loads of Fun!" And the text of their catalog told of cards with hidden signs in the backs, droll dice that would do sly things and roulette wheels with a brake consisting of an ivory peg.

This young reporter had entree so we went and watched the man drill some holes a trifle deeper than others in some dice and load them with deposits of lead concealed by white enamel. Some men were paring the corners off dice. And then we came to a room with signs on the door reading: "No Admittance! This Means You!" My friend pressed right in and there were two pretty little girls about 18, sitting at drawing-boards with tiny camel-hair brushes and ink-bottles, one pink, the other blue, painting little gimmicks on the borders of the big cards.

I said, "Well, well, what are you two cute little girls doing?" Both of them giggled. Just then the boss barged in bawling like mad.

My friend's name was John Cameron Swayze. I went to his television show recently and he said that fellow never did forgive him.

PARTY HARMONY IN CONGRESS

There can be no question that the 1954 campaign for control of Congress is already under way. Both major parties are hard at it.

Yet it would be unwise to assume, therefore, that the Democrats were uniformly high-minded fellows, acting from the noblest of motives. The fact is, they are still quite sensitive to the practical political aspects of the situation.

But practical politics dictates pretty much the same course. For one thing, many of the programs voted on this year are essentially those drafted and carried out under two Democratic presidents. Most Democrats voted for them. They cannot now vote against them without reversing themselves and appearing to repudiate Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman.

For another, the Democrats remember that the Republican strategy of vehement opposition to nearly all Roosevelt-Truman programs paid slim political dividends for 20 years. They seem bent on more selective bombardment of majority party targets.

Thirdly, the Democrats know that Mr. Eisenhower is at the very peak of his popularity in the country. They can imagine that it might be political suicide to attack him personally or get too far from the policies he espouses. Some hints are abroad that certain Democrats might even try to run next year on the President's coattails.

It is no disparagement of Democratic cooperation to serve the national interest to point out that Democrats, like Republicans, are still alert to the tactics of their trade.

ABOLISHING SLUMS

Norwalk, Conn., has found one way to wipe out slums. When the city finds buildings still occupied despite the many violations of the building, fire and health codes, it condemns the structure and requires so many costly alterations that the owner perforce consents to abandon it. New families are also kept from moving in. This simple idea is the brain child of Mayor Irving C. Freese, who has held office since 1947.

Many cities have buildings unfit for human occupancy simply because public authorities do nothing about them. Often the excuse is advanced that if they were torn down, the residents would have nowhere else to go. On the other hand, so long as they are let alone, they will get worse and nothing will be done to find the residents better homes.

Owning slum property without an attempt to improve it, is not a creditable way to make money, and does not deserve the protection of the law.

NEW SLAVERY

To be thrown into slavery is a fate that might happen to anyone whomsoever in a Communist state. The new book, "A New Slavery," relates the story of a 60-year-old Hungarian farmer, arrested, because as the notation about him said, "There is good reason to believe that, if left at large, he would engage in activities detrimental to state interests from an economic standpoint."

THE BALANCED BUDGET

While Congress is not in session and the President is vacationing in Denver, the taxpayer might try thinking out problems for himself unaffected by the explosive pressures put upon him by interested parties. The balanced budget affects the value of our money—not what might be called the nation's money but what the missus has in her pocketbook when she goes to the store.

Everybody agrees that the budget should be balanced. President Eisenhower, Secretary of the Treasury, George M. Humphrey, Director of the Budget, Joseph M. Dodge, most of the Senators and members of the House of Representatives agree that the budget should be balanced. The question is, when—when is it to be done?

H. R. 2 is a bill to forbid the government to expend more money than it takes in. If H. R. 2 were passed, there would be no need to increase the limit for the public debt. It is a measure to balance the budget. The Director of the Budget, Joseph M. Dodge, wrote to Representative Clare E. Hoffman, Chairman of the House Committee on Government Operations, opposing H. R. 2 on the following grounds:

"As I indicated in my letter of April 3, I do not believe that the fundamental problem in the control of federal expenditures can be resolved by arbitrarily limiting expenditures to an amount that does not exceed revenues in any given period. For this reason, I would recommend against favorable consideration of the amended version of H. R. 2."

Precisely how a budget is to be balanced without limiting expenditures to income is a little difficult to understand. As a matter of fact, that is all that a balanced budget does in government, in a private business or in a home. Mr. Dodge says that he favors a balanced budget.

Hoffman's committee reports:

"Not a single witness appearing before the committee, and not a single communication received by the committee, whether from the executive departments or the public, minimized the necessity for balancing the budget."

The Secretary of the Treasury wrote:

"The Treasury Department is in sympathy with the principle of statutory guidelines for bringing expenditures and revenues into balance. The Department would, however, recommend against the relatively inflexible expenditure ceiling provided for in these bills."

Apparently everybody favors the idea but is opposed to doing it. The reason may be that the Administration cannot foretell what will happen, but then that has been true during most of our lives. We have become so entangled in the affairs of the world that we do not know a few days ahead where we are. For instance, no one could foretell the French strikes or what they would do to this country. Shall we, on account of them, have to take over France's troubles in Indo-China or in Morocco? And what is that to cost?

George M. Humphrey said in a speech:

". . . History demonstrates that whenever currency deterioration has started it tends to continue at an ever-increasing rate, the faster the further it goes. Unless courageous, determined, corrective action is taken in time it finally speeds entirely out of control and finishes in utter collapse. The first half of the depreciation of our dollar has already occurred. The programs and conditions which this Administration inherited would have accelerated that pace. Stopping that spiral is imperative."

But how is that to be done without balancing the budget? The larger the national debt, the less the currency is worth in purchasing power. How is the debt ever to be reduced if the budget is not to be balanced? This is one of many public problems from which it is impossible to take a vacation.

When I go down to the village to the general store these days, the conversation is always about high prices. So I get into the argument and make the point that if you call a dollar 50 cents, then the prices are about right. Maybe it is a false argument, because nobody seems to want to call a dollar 50 cents. Yet, why not? It is a fact.

Apparently most Americans do not desire to face facts. And they do not want to face one of the most unpleasant facts which is that if the national debt goes higher and the budget remains unbalanced, money will be worth even less and prices will go still higher.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

BREAST GROWTHS MAY DEVELOP CANCER

I have written before about the three women who, discovering a lump in the breast, decided to say nothing about it to the family or physician as they did not wish to disturb the plans of the family for a long holiday of travel. They were afraid the lump meant cancer of the breast. On returning home after their holiday, they consulted their physicians only to find that the lump in each case was a harmless enlarged milk gland. They had endured all these weeks of worry without cause as the removal of the milk gland by surgery was a simple matter.

When a growth is harmless it is called "benign," whereas if it is cancer it is called "malignant." That these benign or harmless growths may later develop into cancer is stated by Drs. E. F. Lewison and J. G. Lyons in the "American Medical Association Archives of Surgery," Chicago.

Between 1925 and 1942, 451 patients with benign breast diseases were operated upon at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. The progress of 85.4 per cent, or 385 patients, was successfully followed over a 1-to-25-year period survival span. The average follow-up period was 13.6 years with 75 per cent of the patients being examined periodically from 10 to 25 years. There were three forms of benign breast disease: 200 of one type, 153 of another, and 32 of still another type. The average age of these 451 patients was 36 years.

Simple surgical removal was performed in 92 per cent. Benign breast disease returned in 13 per cent of the 385 cases followed. Cancer of the breast developed in 7 (that is, less than 2 per cent).

What do we learn from these figures based on careful and scientific survey and follow-up of this large number of patients with benign breast disease?

1. Drs. Lewison and Lyons state that the chances of acquiring breast cancer appeared to be about 2½ to 3½ times greater in this series of cases than in the general female population in the same age range.

2. This study is in accord with the current knowledge which accepts a "predisposition" of patients with benign breast disease to breast cancer. Thus, all patients with benign breast disease should be regularly examined at periodic intervals.

I have related frequently the story of the three women who believed they had cancer of the breast and found that they had only benign breast disease; I believe I should give the above information to my readers so that those who have benign or harmless breast growths removed should, as suggested by these surgeons, be regularly examined at periodic intervals.

Cancer: Its Symptoms and Treatment

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—The United States now has a firm commitment from the 16 United Nations allies in Korea, authorizing the bombing of Chinese Communist air bases north of the Yalu river if peace talks break down and fighting is resumed on the Korean peninsula.

This is the interpretation put on one section of the 16-power declaration of Aug. 8, pledging quick UN resistance against any new Communist aggression in Korea. It declares:

"The consequences of such a breach of the armistice would be so grave that, in all probability, it would not be possible to confine hostilities within the frontiers of Korea."

The inside story of how this sentence got into the 16-power declaration provides the necessary background for its meaning.

During the armistice negotiations, the question of repairing bombed-out airfields in North Korea came up. During the fighting, the U. S. Air Force, naval and UN aviation kept these fields under constant attack. The result was that these fields were useless to the Communist air forces. Their planes never were able to damage UN forces south of the battle line.

General Mark Clark and the UN commanders were naturally anxious to keep these fields from being put back into usable condition after the armistice. So a clause in the cease-fire agreement was proposed to restrict the building up of air bases by both sides during the armistice and the peace talks.

Communists Protested

The Communists protested vehemently. United Nations negotiators, anxious to get a cease-fire agreement, put pressure on the United States to relax on this airfield repair restriction. And to comply with the UN wishes, the U. S. gave in.

This surrender of principle was made only for a price: if the Reds broke the armistice and fighting resumed, the UN allies would agree to waive their previous restriction against bombing north of the Yalu river. And so the deal was made.

It was covered by the 16-power statement that if there is a renewal of armed attack, challenging again the principles of the United Nations, the fighting would not be confined to Korea.

This declaration puts the United Nations in an extremely strong bargaining position. If the Reds want to resume the fighting, they now have fair warning of what to expect. They will no longer have their sanctuary in Manchuria from which to attack.

In a number of other respects, this 16-power declaration to the United Nations, plus the mutual defense agreement negotiated by the Republic of Korea President Syngman Rhee and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are advantageous to the U. S.

U. S. and UN military commanders are not too unhappy at having a large number of Chinese Communist troops pinned down in North Korea. This does provide a constant threat of new aggression and while an agreement to get the Red China armies out of Korea is hoped for eventually, forces there now cannot be moved for a new aggression elsewhere, against Indo-China, Thailand, Burma, Nepal or even India.

Build Up South Korea

In the meantime, the job of building up the South Korean army to the previously announced force of 20 divisions can be carried on. The United Nations and the Chinese Communists are restricted by the armistice from bringing new troops into Korea except as replacements. But there are no restrictions on building up either the North or South Korean forces.

No new military equipment can be brought in. But equipment now in the hands of UN troops could be given to Republic of Korea forces. In the same way, Chinese Communist equipment could be given to the North Koreans. Then if and when a peace settlement is reached, the foreign troops evacuated from Korean soil would go out empty-handed, for re-equipment elsewhere.

There is now believed to be little danger that President Rhee will start up the war again on his own. The threat was a shrewd bargaining gesture to get all that he could from the United States in a mutual security pact. But now that the pact is initialed, there is no incentive for Rhee to restart the war.

This pact does not obligate the United States to maintain troops in Korea. This subject is left to mutual agreement after the pact has been ratified by the U. S. Senate and Korea.

Furthermore, the U. S. is not bound automatically to resume fighting if the peace conference produces no results within 90 days. The agreement is that the U. S. and ROK will each take a new look at the end of 90 days. If the UN allies believe there is some hope of achieving peace within 180 days or longer, the talks go on.

Limited Distribution Hurts Full Facts All Should Know About Communist Conspiracy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 25 — For nearly three years a Senate Subcommittee and its staff have worked intensively to piece together the facts concerning the Communist conspiracy which has been actively at work inside the United States government during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Now the final report is ready for the public to read, but how are the American people going to know about it?

The newspapers have printed accurate though brief summaries, but the report itself, with excerpts from sworn testimony, has to be read in full to get the real picture of how far some American citizens have gone to betray their own country.

The Senate Subcommittee itself can make available only about 15,000 copies, and these will be furnished free as long as they last to anyone who writes to the Internal Security Committee, Room 413, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

But such a limited distribution cannot begin to be effective. Not long ago the "Americans for Democratic Action," a radical organization which has been waging a fight against Senator McCarthy, announced that it would distribute about 100,000 copies of the Senate Subcommittee report concerning alleged financial irregularities by the Wisconsin senator in income tax matters. The report itself is full of innuendo but offers no proof of its charges and is plainly a political document. Nevertheless the Americans for Democratic Action said it was a congressional report which needed a wider distribution.

One wonders if the Americans for Democratic Action now will buy from the government printing office—at a cost of only a few cents a copy—about 100,000 copies of the Senate Subcommittee report which tells the story of the Soviet spy rings inside the American government. The ADA claims to be anti-Communist, so this affords it an opportunity to strike a blow at Communists in America.

This is an important report for the ADA to distribute also because that organization has been making, as one of its principal arguments, the point that the FBI can handle the Communist problem by itself and that it isn't necessary for the investigating committees of Congress to do what they have been doing about it. Incidentally, there is a movement afoot to get various national organizations to adopt resolutions declaring that congressional committees are "invading" the executive branch of the government. Already the AFL Teachers Union has adopted one of those resolutions, and a group of so-called "liberals" in the American Bar Association are this week attempting to press for passage of a similar resolution.

The new report from the Internal Security Committee, however, gives chapter and verse on the record of the FBI in calling attention to the presence of Alger Hiss and other Communists inside the government as early as 1941. But neither the Roosevelt nor the Truman administrations did anything about the Hiss case till the House Committee on Un-American Activities, with the help of some confessed Communists uncovered the plotters.

The Internal Security Committee's pamphlet is fascinating reading. It should be read by every citizen who likes to argue about McCarthyism and about the problem of Communists inside our government. By reading such a report, the citizen who makes generalized statements about the "methods" of congressional committees is likely to learn something also about the "methods" by which high officials of our government from the White House down were duped and misled by the Communist spies inside the last two administrations.

Maybe the Sunday sections of some newspapers will print the Senate Internal Security Committee's report in full and maybe some citizens will ask Congress to have more copies printed so that the whole tragic story may be more widely known and the American people alerted to the subtle and deceptive ways whereby ostensibly patriotic American citizens betray their own country and shape the policies of their own government so as to favor the interests of the Soviet government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I thought my vernal essays on pitched ball had used up the ballistics of inanimate objects in flight, but an alchemist in Las Vegas, Nev., now tells me he can come out on a point with an ordinary pair of store-dice and make it, hundreds and hundreds of times. Millions of times! This means that under his tutelage my practitioner can bust any game in Vegas and go on to rattle our national economy and the financial structure of the whole world.

Well, I have known individuals, all more or less touched, who had systems which, in extended trials, backed by enough money, could beat the races, roulette or conventional stud. I used to have a theory about No. 17, right in the middle of the layout, which I put to a long test with two-bit markers one night in Carter's sawdust joint in old Miami Beach when Tex Rickard was taking his first peek at dreamland. But I ran out of what it took just before the ball plopped in. There was nothing wrong with the system. My nerve gave way, that's all. You ought to be a little drunko to string along with a system.

Jack Dempsey was against the wall at another table and a big crowd gathered to watch him break the house. He couldn't lose for winning. But when I bought a stack and started to follow his play he whispered "nix, nix! this doesn't go. Get away!"

I think we should do something about this character in Vegas before he puts this thing into circulation. You can't tell what he might do. He could break every regiment, every division in the army. Every ship's company on every battlewagon. The man says he doesn't want to make money out of it. If he did he would just go down to Wilbur Clark's or the Last Frontier and take it all. No rubbing, no chafing, no moaning or groaning. There is no such thing as ten the hard way. The man says there is no hard way. But he wants to release the system to all the people at the same time in which case he would nullify the whole thing because nobody could get faded. So people would just drift off to the slot machines and the tiger's cage. Then where would we be?

This character says it is all done through a hitherto unknown law in the field of ballistics. But ballistics runs into philosophy and physics and chemistry as I learned when I poked up the savants by saying that no pitcher in baseball ever could throw a hop. I got letters all the way from India talking about friction, impetus, air-pressure and vacuum. It got so that I finally swept a bushel of mail off the desk and started off on something else. I think Einstein wrote some of the deals I got in that mail. They made doodles, dingbats and pin-wheels and the gist of it all was that a ball would jump from a flat course if a pitcher with enough swift could ever learn how.

Dice have got flat, slippery sides. Sometimes they slide, although, if they do, disorder is in order and windows get broken. This set me to thinking of the time George Raft beat the chump in Leo Durocher's Little Pied A Terre in New York. This smart New York sucker was such a hero-worshipper that he insisted on standing at the great celebrity's elbow and never thought to shove down a few steps and grab the dice for a look.

It made me think of a sad episode in the old 7th Field when a sergeant cleaned out the regiment and was fixing to buy himself out of the army and start a little place when captain's inspection turned up a catalog from a manufacturer of toys and novelties in Kansas City. The manufacturer offered one breed of dice that couldn't miss and others that couldn't do anything else but. They didn't give that sergeant a court but they did have to patch him together when the brave cannoneers got through with him.

A few years ago I did a trick in Kansas City, delighting my devotees with discreet essays on the restaurant where the waitresses at the business men's lunch peeled off something with each course and the hardy bankers had a habit of pointing to the whole menu and saying, "bring me a double order of that!" One day I met up with a young reporter on the old K.C. Post. I said the one thing I most wanted to see was the factory where this novelty company had made the artillery sergeant's dominoes. Their motto was "Fool Your Friends! Loads of Fun!" And the text of their catalog told of cards with hidden signs in the backs, droll dice that would do sly things and roulette wheels with a brake consisting of an ivory peg.

This young reporter had entree so we went and watched the man drill some holes a trifle deeper than others in some dice and load them with deposits of lead concealed by white enamel. Some men were paring the corners off dice. And then we came to a room with signs on the door reading: "No Admittance! This Means You!" My friend pressed right in and there were two pretty little girls about 18, sitting at drawing-boards with tiny camel-hair brushes and ink-bottles, one pink, the other blue, painting little gimmicks on the borders of the big cards.

I said, "Well, well, what are you two cute little girls doing?" Both of them giggled. Just then the boss barged in bawling like mad.

My friend's name was John Cameron Swayze. I went to his television show recently and he said that fellow never did forgive him.

Ripley's Oddities On Exhibition Here

Robert Ripley's personal collection of "Believe It or Not" oddities are being exhibited on a national tour for the fourth consecutive year. These curioddities are carried in six large custom built trailers, one of which will be presented in Kingston, on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 29 and 30, by the Navy Club of the United States of America.

This will be the fourth such exhibit to be seen here, and entirely different than any previously shown. This mobile museum features mysterious oddities from darkest Africa. Included are such rare items, as the African Hate God, primitive clubs and knives, as well as countless articles of witchcraft and black magic.

There is also a large number of rare relics and collector's items, such as the "world's oldest unpaid bill" and Jesse James' first pistol, "Believe It or Not."

The exhibit will be located at Wall and John streets, and open to the public from 10 a. m. until 9 p. m. School children as well as adults are invited to this entertaining and educational exhibit. There is no admission charge, although voluntary donations are accepted for the Welfare and Rehabilitation program of the Navy Club of the U. S. A.

A Tribute

Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker

When a beautiful woman dies, the world, as well as the city in which she lived, is both poorer and richer.

The passing of Alberta Benedict Schoonmaker has taken from us a rarely radiant spirit. An exquisitely feminine woman of indescribable charm, an aristocrat, beautiful to look at in age as she was in youth, she combined the qualities of integrity and courage with the kind of personality that drew everyone to her in adoration and love.

It was she who, so many years ago, organized and founded the Ulster County Garden Club. A lover of all things beautiful, she built at her home on West Chestnut street, on a difficult hillside slope, a garden charming in design and in its use of horticulture. A walled garden it was, with an arched gateway at the farther end looking down on Rondout Creek and framing a white church spire. With no training or experience in such matters, she herself drew the plans to scale and created a place of loveliness.

Meeting more than her share of tragedy, she faced the world with a head held high. Having in abundance, also, the richest joys of family life, she was adept in tact and resourcefulness, always keeping in her home the nucleus of harmony and understanding. In her own soul she had overcome much and found an inner peace that conveyed itself to all who came within her orbit.

Great love is the legacy that she left to us all. An enchanting personality has gone on to larger spheres. The time will come when those of us who loved her so deeply will be able to say that we are richer for having had her, rather than poorer for having lost her.

There is a saying from the ancient Greek that brings us comfort;

"That men may be content to live, the gods have hidden from them that it is sweet to die."

Charge Dropped In City Court

A motion to dismiss the information and complaint charging disorderly conduct against Patrick Amendola, of 450 Albany avenue, and brought by Morris Monashefsky, of 43 Roosevelt avenue, was granted in city court today.

The motion was made last week by Attorney Charles Saccoman for the defendant. Briefs were submitted and the motion was argued before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

It was charged that the defendant had called the complainant "names" in a telephone conversation. Saccoman contended that such a conversation was private and involved "no breach of the peace," as required in the statute and similar cases of record were cited. John Schick appeared for the district attorney's office.

Amendola Brings Charge

Monashefsky appeared before Judge Mino yesterday on a charge of malicious mischief brought by Amendola on information of the latter's wife and the case was put over to Sept. 1.

The arrests, authorities said, arose from a dispute over a fence along the property of the Quality Maple Block Co., on Deyo street, with which Monashefsky is connected. The property adjoins that of Amendola. The fence, it is charged, interferes with the use of a railroad track at the maple block plant. A civil action is also pending and Monashefsky has obtained a court order to restrain Amendola from fencing the area.

U. S. Will Oppose Demand

United Nations, Aug. 25 (AP)—The United States will oppose an Asian-Arab demand for consideration of the Moroccan situation by the UN Security Council, a spokesman said today. This virtually dooms the proposal to defeat. Britain and France already are known to be against consideration of the question and one or two other members are expected to vote in the negative or abstain. Seven affirmative votes are required to put the question on the 11-nation council's agenda. The Council meets tomorrow afternoon.

Mass Is Offered

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—A requiem Mass was offered today in St. Helena's Roman Church for Mrs. Dorothy McKinley, who with her 3-year-old adopted daughter, Nadine, plunged to death from their sixth-story apartment last Friday. The Rev. Christopher A. Coyne celebrated the Mass before 200 mourners including Matthew McKinley, the husband, and her mother, Mrs. Maria Miller. Burial for the woman and child was in St. Raymond's Cemetery, the Bronx.

Late Bulletin

Franklin, Va., Aug. 25 (AP)—Air Force investigators reported today they had found the body of the pilot of an F-84 Thunderjet fighter that crashed in a wooded area near here yesterday. The plane plummeted to earth at an estimated speed of more than 500 mph.

The Thunderjet, piloted by Lt. Walter P. Biagioni, 29, of Bridgeport, Conn., had left Langley Air Force Base 46 minutes before the crash.

Langley spokesmen reported the pilot's body was found in the crater the plane dug as it struck the ground. They said they had identified the plane from bits of wreckage.

Woman Is Missing

Marguerite L. Danton, 30, has been reported missing from her home at R.D. 3, High Woods, since Sunday night. A description furnished the sheriff's office stated she is five feet, 11 inches tall, weighs about 160 pounds, had dark blonde hair, and when last seen was wearing a black dress with V-shaped neckpiece and cuffs in a black black and white polka dot material, white shoes, velvet hat, and gold wristwatch and gold necklace. Honor System Used

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 25 (AP)—Connecticut motorists have been placed on their honor not to drive during short periods their licenses may be suspended for minor infractions. In the past, motor vehicle department inspectors or state police have picked up the licenses of suspended motorists to be held during the suspension period. Under the new procedure recently announced by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Charles F. Kelley, the offending motorist will be notified his license is under suspension and told to keep the license but not to drive until the period is completed.

Wagner Cries, 'Politics'

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan today filed an order lifting the four-year ban on taxi radios, drawing an immediate cry of "politics" from mayoral candidate Robert F. Wagner Jr. Wagner, Manhattan borough president, charged that Mayor Impellitteri had approved lifting the ban, over police department objections, to get political support from cab drivers.

Will Use Missiles

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—Guided missiles will protect key centers of population and industrial areas in the United States as part of the army's defense system. Although it was announced last March that work would start this summer on the setting up of guided missiles anti-aircraft units, no details have been divulged on how far the work has progressed, or in what areas it has been undertaken.

When Cake Is Done

Here's how to know when a butter cake is done. It will be slightly shrunken from the sides of the pan, fully risen, and evenly browned. The top should spring back when touched lightly with the tip of a finger, and a cake tester inserted in the center should come out without any particles sticking to it.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The stock market was lower today, extending in a moderate manner its sharp break of yesterday.

Declines usually were held to less than a point with the range of loss going to between 1 and 2 points at the outside, with a few exceptions.

Selling today centered in the raidroads as it did yesterday. Steels, motors and some oils also were offered freely. Sections of the market showing steadiness were inactive. These included such groups as motion pictures, distillers, farm implements, and radio-televisions.

Denver & Rio Grande Western was under pressure and lost between 5 and 6 points at times with the preferred down between 2 and 3. Just before the close yesterday directors announced an increased dividend and a 50 per cent stock dividend. The stock lost only ⅜ yesterday.

Tighter Rule in Effect

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP) — Draft-age youths who become fathers in the future will be ineligible for deferment from military service simply because they have a child. Tightened regulations went into effect today. Selective service said that a registrant who is a father, or whose wife is expecting a child, must have had that fact recorded with his local draft board "before Aug. 25" if he expects to qualify for deferment solely on grounds he is a father. However local boards may in their discretion accept late information if a registrant shows that "unusual or unavoidable circumstances" prevented him from filing the information by Aug. 25. From today on, under new draft regulations, the only ground for dependency deferments is "proven hardship and privation."

South Korean

tries, Russia and most of the Arab-Asian bloc. The United States opposes India at the peace table, arguing that to admit her would discriminate against such other neutrals interested in Korea as Japan and Nationalist China.

Piles Up Series

Pyun piled up a running series of denunciations against India in the political committee, accusing her of "appeasement to the Communist aggressors . . . treachery of the first magnitude . . . constantly hatcheting at the tree of freedom to please the enemy of freedom."

"India has done nothing but disservice to the cause of human freedom by pandering to the interests of the enemy of freedom," he charged.

He also assailed Prime Minister Nehru's government for its support of the recent installation of a pro-Indian government in Kashmir, declaring:

"From the knowledge of how India has been behaving in Kashmir, my delegation gravely doubts whether India will live up to the high moral standard its seems to expect the Republic of Korea to practice."

Pyun excused the bitterness of his attack on the ground that Korea is "near to death," and "people who have been very near to death are usually terribly frank . . . I feel somehow that I shall not have enough chances to be frank before I die."

Ackerman Still Head

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP)—The East German Communist regime made it a point today to show that Anton Ackermann still is head of the foreign ministry, apparently to spike current rumors he had been purged. The government news agency announced that the North Korean foreign minister had sent a cable of thanks to Ackermann for his congratulations on the anniversary of Korea's "liberation" eight years ago. Rumors have circulated that Ackermann had been purged from the government.

Youths Cleared Of Any Connection In Soldier Case

Two youths picked up near Highland Sunday night for questioning in connection with the assault and robbery of a 19-year-old Poughkeepsie soldier have been cleared of any implication in the crime and have been released, Poughkeepsie police reported this morning.

Police are still hunting the assailants of John Richards, 19, who was slugged and robbed along the railroad tracks after being enticed from the New York Central Railroad's Poughkeepsie station.

Following a tip from a cab driver, Poughkeepsie detectives, aided by state police of Highland, Sunday night picked up two suspects in Highland, but during questioning they satsified police they were not involved in the incident, Detective Captain Brophy of Poughkeepsie said this morning. The youths, whose names he did not reveal, were released and no charges pressed, he said.

Richards, meanwhile, is a patient at Vassar Brothers Hospital, where his condition was reported as somewhat improved, Capt. Brophy said.

A Tribute

Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker

When a beautiful woman dies, the world, as well as the city in which she lived, is both poorer and richer.

The passing of Alberta Benedict Schoonmaker has taken from us a rarely radiant spirit. An exquisitely feminine woman of indescribable charm, an aristocrat, beautiful to look at in age as she was in youth, she combined the qualities of integrity and courage with the kind of personality that drew everyone to her in adoration and love.

It was she who, so many years ago, organized and founded the Ulster County Garden Club. A lover of all things beautiful, she built at her home on West Chestnut street, on a difficult hillside slope, a garden charming in design and in its use of horticulture. A walled garden it was, with an arched gateway at the farther end looking down on Rondout Creek and framing a white church spire. With no training or experience in such matters, she herself drew the plans to scale and created a place of loveliness.

Meeting more than her share of tragedy, she faced the world with a head held high. Having in abundance, also, the richest joys of family life, she was adept in tact and resourcefulness, always keeping in her home the nucleus of harmony and understanding. In her own soul she had overcome much and found an inner peace that conveyed itself to all who came within her orbit.

Great love is the legacy that she left to us all. An enchanting personality has gone on to larger spheres. The time will come when those of us who loved her so deeply will be able to say that we are richer for having had her, rather than poorer for having lost her.

There is a saying from the ancient Greek that brings us comfort:

"That men may be content to live, the gods have hidden from them that it is sweet to die."

Charge Dropped In City Court

A motion to dismiss the information and complaint charging disorderly conduct against Patrick Amendola, of 450 Albany avenue, and brought by Morris Monashefsky, of 43 Roosevelt avenue, was granted in city court today.

The motion was made last week by Attorney Charles Saccoman for the defendant. Briefs were submitted and the motion was argued before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

It was charged that the defendant had called the complainant "names" in a telephone conversation. Saccoman contended that such a conversation was private and involved "no breach of the peace," as required in the statute and similar cases of record were cited. John Schick appeared for the district attorney's office.

Amendola Brings Charge

Monashefsky appeared before Judge Mino yesterday on a charge of malicious mischief brought by Amendola on information of the latter's wife and the case was put over to Sept. 1.

The arrests, authorities said, arose from a dispute over a fence along the property of the Quality Maple Block Co., on Deyo street, with which Monashefsky is connected. The property adjoins that of Amendola. The fence, it is charged, interferes with the use of a railroad track at the maple block plant. A civil action is also pending and Monashefsky has obtained a court order to restrain Amendola from fencing the area.

U. S. Will Oppose Demand

United Nations, Aug. 25 (AP)—The United States will oppose an Asian-Arab demand for consideration of the Moroccan situation by the UN Security Council, a spokesman said today. This virtually dooms the proposal to defeat. Britain and France already are known to be against consideration of the question and one or two other members are expected to vote in the negative or abstain. Seven affirmative votes are required to put the question on the 11-nation council's agenda. The Council meets tomorrow afternoon.

Mass Is Offered

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—A requiem Mass was offered today in St. Helena's Roman Church for Mrs. Dorothy McKinley, who with her 3-year-old adopted daughter, Nadine, plunged to death from their sixth-story apartment last Friday. The Rev. Christopher A. Coyne celebrated the Mass before 200 mourners including Matthew McKinley, the husband, and her mother, Mrs. Maria Miller. Burial for the woman and child was in St. Raymond's Cemetery, the Bronx.

Franklin, Va., Aug. 25 (AP)—Air Force investigators reported today they had found the body of the pilot of an F-84 Thunderjet fighter that crashed in a wooded area near here yesterday. The plane plummeted to earth at an estimated speed of more than 500 mph.

The Thunderjet, piloted by Lt. Walter P. Biagioni, 29, of Bridgeport, Conn., had left Langley Air Force Base 46 minutes before the crash.

Langley spokesmen reported the pilot's body was found in the crater the plane dug as it struck the ground. They said they had identified the plane from bits of wreckage.

Honor System Used

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 25 (AP)—Connecticut motorists have been placed on their honor not to drive during short periods their licenses may be suspended for minor infractions. In the past, motor vehicle department inspectors or state police have picked up the licenses of suspended motorists to be held during the suspension period. Under the new procedure recently announced by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Charles F. Kelley, the offending motorist will be notified his license is under suspension and told to keep the license but not to drive until the period is completed.

Wagner Cries, 'Politics'

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan today filed an order lifting the four-year ban on taxi radios, drawing an immediate cry of "politics" from mayoral candidate Robert F. Wagner Jr. Wagner, Manhattan borough president, charged that Mayor Impellitteri had approved lifting the ban, over police department objections, to get political support from cab drivers.

When Cake Is Done

Here's how to know when a butter cake is done. It will be slightly shrunken from the sides of the pan, fully risen, and evenly browned. The top should spring back when touched lightly with the tip of a finger, and a cake tester inserted in the center should come out without any particles sticking to it.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The stock market was lower today, extending in a moderate manner its sharp break of yesterday.

Declines usually were held to less than a point with the range of loss going to between 1 and 2 points at the outside, with a few exceptions.

Selling today centered in the raidroads as it did yesterday. Steels, motors and some oils also were offered freely. Sections of the market showing steadiness were inactive. These included such groups as motion pictures, distillers, farm implements, and radio-televisions.

Denver & Rio Grande Western was under pressure and lost between 5 and 6 points at times with the preferred down between 2 and 3. Just before the close yesterday directors announced an increased dividend and a 50 per cent stock dividend. The stock lost only ⅜ yesterday.

Second Strike Scheduled

Tokyo, Aug. 25 (AP) — Japanese unions today scheduled for Friday a second 48-hour strike of U. S. military bases despite reports of agreement on a new labor contract between the unions and the Japanese government. Negotiations between the government and U. S. officials, based on the agreement, are expected to start in a day or two, Kyodo News Agency said. The walkout would be the second within a month.

Tighter Rule in Effect

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP) — Draft-age youths who become fathers in the future will be ineligible for deferment from military service simply because they have a child. Tightened regulations went into effect today. Selective service said that a registrant who is a father, or whose wife is expecting a child, must have had that fact recorded with his local draft board "before Aug. 25" if he expects to qualify for deferment solely on grounds he is a father. However local boards may in their discretion accept late information if a registrant shows that "unusual or unavoidable circumstances" prevented him from filing the information by Aug. 25. From today on, under new draft regulations, the only ground for dependency deferments is "proven hardship and privation."

South Korean

tries, Russia and most of the Arab-Asian bloc. The United States opposes India at the peace table, arguing that to admit her would discriminate against such other neutrals interested in Korea as Japan and Nationalist China.

Piles Up Series

Pyun piled up a running series of denunciations against India in the political committee, accusing her of "appeasement to the Communist aggressors . . . treachery of the first magnitude . . . constantly hatcheting at the tree of freedom to please the enemy of freedom."

"India has done nothing but disservice to the cause of human freedom by pandering to the interests of the enemy of freedom," he charged.

He also assailed Prime Minister Nehru's government for its support of the recent installation of a pro-Indian government in Kashmir, declaring:

"From the knowledge of how India has been behaving in Kashmir, my delegation gravely doubts whether India will live up to the high moral standard its seems to expect the Republic of Korea to practice."

Pyun excused the bitterness of his attack on the ground that Korea is "near to death," and "people who have been very near to death are usually terribly frank . . . I feel somehow that I shall not have enough chances to be frank before I die."

Ackerman Still Head

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP)—The East German Communist regime made it a point today to show that Anton Ackermann still is head of the foreign ministry, apparently to spike current rumors he had been purged. The government news agency announced that the North Korean foreign minister had sent a cable of thanks to Ackermann for his congratulations on the anniversary of Korea's "liberation" eight years ago. Rumors have circulated that Ackermann had been purged from the government.

Bondholders File Plan to Reorganize Separate Firms

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—A group of holders of refunding mortgage bonds of the bankrupt New York, Ontario and Western Railway has filed a plan to reorganize the railroad into two separate companies.

The plan provides for the railroad's branch lines to Kingston and Port Jervis, N. Y., to be made into a separate company and to be operated as a short-line railroad; and for the main lines to Delhi, Utica, Rome and Oswego, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa., to be continued in operation as a Class 1 railroad.

The reorganization plan was filed yesterday with the U. S. District Court here and with the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington.

The bondholders' group filing the plan was headed by Thomas H. Blodgett, chairman of the American Chicle Co.; William J. Alford Jr., chairman of Alford Cartons Ltd., and Roswell C. Tripp, a director of Liquid Carbonic Corp.

Included in Plan

Among items in the plan were these:

Holders of each $1,000 principal amount of the refunding mortgage bonds would receive 21 shares of common stock in the new main line company and 21 shares in the branch lines company. The general mortgage bondholders would receive 10 shares in each company per $1,000 principal amount held.

Also, bondholders would have a right to subscribe to $1,600,000 principal amount of new fixed 4 per cent first mortgage bonds and 180,000 shares of new no-part common stock at the rate of $50 in bonds and 5⅝ shares for $50 cash for each old $1,000 bond held.

The plan made no provision for general creditors or stockholders.

Annual earnings of the proposed main line company before any anticipated new revenue were estimated by the bondholders group at better than 30 cents a share on the common stock after fixed and contingent interest.

The bondholders group said it believed that losses sustained in 1952 could be eliminated through dropping losing operations and effecting economies through joint operation with another railroad.

Diplomas Ready

School diplomas for those seniors who did not receive theirs at the commencement exercises have been received at Kingston High School and may be called for at the principal's office between 8 a. m. and 12 noon and 1 p. m. and 4 p. m.

Cop Saves Woman From Two-Floor Plunge

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—A woman leaped from a second-floor window yesterday, just as a patrolman rushed into her flat. He caught her by an arm, then held her dangling like a pendulum until help came.

Patrolman Stephen Kramer, for agonizing minutes, held 100-pound Mattie Totkowska, 38, with a single hand. He used his other hand to balance himself as he straddled the open space between a fire place, where he planted one foot, and a window sill, where he put the other foot.

Two other persons were rescued by police and firemen last night, each after spending an hour on window perches. Dee Carroll, a shapely unemployed dancer, was pulled into her fifth-story apartment on West 58th street. Albert Michel, 61, was grabbed from a sixth-floor window of his Bronx apartment.

Early Sunday, police and firemen coaxed Sidney Herman, 23, from a 14th-story ledge of a Brooklyn Veterans' Hospital after he refused to leave his perch for more than 13 hours.

Home Bureau

Entries for the home department at the Ulster County Fair were larger than last year, says Mrs. William Powers, superintendent of the Home Department.

Sweepstakes winner was Miss Edna Ten Hagen of High Falls who won 132 prize points with 23 blue ribbons, 24 red ribbons and 15 yellow ribbons. The Kingston Day unit won second prize for their textile stenciling exhibit.

The County Home Bureau exhibit was a simple kitchen cupboard with devices made from orange crates. Members of the booth were Mrs. William Cranston of Kingston, Mrs. Oliver Grey and Mrs. Benjamin Pollack of Kerhonkson, Mrs. Wilbur Van Wyck, Mrs. Duane Dolan, Mrs. Lawrence Dolan and Mrs. Edwin Abrahamson of New Hurley.

The replacement of baked goods with an antique basket display was so successful that Mrs. Powers announced plans to continue this policy in the future.

Radiation Is Found

Albuquerque, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said today it had found radiation injuries on 21 horses owned by stockmen near the Nevada A-bomb proving ground. But it denied a number of cattle belonging to one of those stockmen had died from such injuries and suggested 'forage and water conditions were generally poor in the area this year and malnutrition could have contributed to the deaths of some."

Special Dessert

For a special dessert treat spread white layer cakes with date filling. To make the filling cook the dates in a little water until they are soft and can be mashed easily, then beat in a tablespoon or so of lemon juice and butter. Frost the date-filled cakes with a rich chocolate icing.

I'm sorry to say that there was something wrong with both the bidding and the play of the hand shown today. Since everybody at the table was an experienced player, however, the mistakes are quite instructive.

South's opening bid of one heart after two passes was reasonable enough. He would not have opened the bidding as dealer or as second hand, but it was a good lead-director after two passes.

The double and the redouble were sound enough, and East had a normal response of two diamonds over the redouble. With a sound opening bid, South would have passed at his second turn. North's redouble stated: "I have a good hand, partner. Let the next bid come around to me because I may be able to double it." By failing to heed this request, South hoped to indicate that he had a good heart suit but a hand that was ill-equipped for defense.

Once South had shown a good, strong heart suit there was no reason for North to show his spades. He should have raised to three hearts, thus giving his partner the chance to play the hand either at game or at the nine-trick level.

South wasn't sure that it was safe to pass three spades (it wasn't, since a heart lead at an early stage would give the defenders a heart ruff in addition to their four top tricks), and therefore South bid four hearts. West promptly doubled and the fat was in the fire — or should have been.

West opened the jack of diamonds, East put up the king, and South won with the ace. South led a low diamond and ruffed in dummy, and promptly returned a low spade from the dummy.

East wondered miserably whether or not to put up the ace of spades and finally decided to play low on the theory that his partner needed at least three spades for the takeout double. Hence South won with the jack of spades and could now afford to give up two hearts and a club, making his unsound contract.

East should have played his ace of spades even though he expected South to ruff it. There would never be a later chance to make a spade trick. Even if South were able to ruff the first spade, he would then have an additional club and would be unable to get rid of all of his clubs in time.

Riding Club Picks Building Sites

Woodstock, Aug. 25—Following a pot-luck supper at the Ohayo Mountain ring, a large group of members of the Woodstock Riding Club discussed possible building sites for a proposed club house and stable. After a tour of the grounds while several sites were under consideration, it was voted that the stable would be located on the southeast corner of the property where the picket line is now situated. It was then decided that the club house would be placed on the east side of the field where the refreshment stand is now located. The meeting was conducted by Griffin Herrick, president of the club.

Copies of the prize list for the annual field day which will be held at the ring Sunday, Sept. 2 starting at 9 a. m., were also distributed. It was announced that Harold Standring of Newburgh will be the judge for the events.

18 Classes

A total of 18 classes will be included. They are as follows: pleasure horse (a) western (b) flat saddle; egg race; novice jumping (jumps to start at 2 feet); open trail dass; clover leaf; jr. relay race (under 13 ears); noon recess — costume parade through Woodstock; roa hack, flat saddle; musical chair (under 16 years); working stock horse class (open); open relay race; break gait and out; bareback jumping; open jumping jumps to start at 2½ feet); pol croquet; rummage race; bareback horsemanship; doughnut spearing.

As in past years the spirit of the field day is "un on horseback" for the rider, a good time for spectators and in general a relaxed, informal atmosphere.

Dance Concert Is Held on Saturday

Woodstock, Aug. 25—One of the arts which has been more or less neglected in Woodstock for a long time is the dance. In the past year, however, has been gaining attention and popularity through the several recitals which have been presented here. Saturday night two young dancers from New York, Renate Aubert and Andora Hodgin, were enthusiastically received by a large audience at the Parnassus Square Galleries, which demonstrated its approval by resounding calls for "More!" at the close of the concert.

Miss Hodgin, a statuesque blond with a brilliant flair for line and form in her presentations, opened the program with a lilting dance of provincial inspiration titled Songs of the Auvergne to the music of French folk songs. In the alabaster perfection of her costume she introduced a spiritual and aloof quality conveying dignity and power. In contrast she evoked a burst of applause for her final piece, Sent, a hilarious American contemporary dance to the music of Crazy Man.

A striking foil, dark, vivacious Renate Aubert brought a firery zest to the evening with the gaiety of her Free At Last to a Negro spiritual and color to the mood of Evening in the Country, combining it with another dance in the same idiom, Vivace, both to the music of Bela Bartok. Her American Rhapsody from a poem by Kenneth Fearing was a high point of the evening, a fine illustration of how the dance may project the spoken word.

The pianist for Miss Aubert was Mel Strauss and for Miss Hodgin the pianist was Richard Eveleth.

Eighmeys Hosts To Scout Chiefs

Woodstock, Aug. 25—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eighmey were the hosts last weekend at their home in Shady to seven Boy Scout Den Chiefs of Cub Pack 15, of Kingston, who were attending the annual weekend outing. The boys arrived at the Eighmey home Friday night and returned to Kingston Monday morning. Those who attended were Girard White, Troop 11; Frank Rittie, Troop 6; Joseph Gillen, Troop 6; Peter Showers, Troop 9; Jay Delaney, Troop 15; Vincent DeCicco, Troop 15; and David Eighmey, Troop 6. Eighmey is Cub Master of Pack 15.

Following supper Friday night, provided by Mrs. Eighmey, who is a Den Mother, the boys participated in a game of baseball until dark, after which there was a Den Chiefs' planning meeting which was attended by Philip Gillen, assistant Cub Master. Activities Saturday included a hike in the morning and a swim meet in the afternoon which was followed by an outdoor campfire and supper.

On Sunday morning the boys paid their respects to the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, who for many years has actively contributed to the Boy Scout program, by attending the service at the Dutch Reformed Church, in uniform.

Blind Sale Nets $445 on Tuesday

Woodstock, Aug. 25—The sale of articles made by the blind held in Woodstock, on the Lutheran Church lawn, Mill Hill Road, Tuesday, Aug. 18, netted $445.80 to the cause of the blind. Mrs. John Wolven acted as general chairman of the Woodstock sale.

This year's sale showed an increase of $174.24 over last year and was the largest sale ever held in Woodstock.

The sale was directed by committees from the following churches: Dutch Reformed, Mrs. LaMonte V. Simpkins, chairman; Methodist, Miss Linda Sahler, chairman; Lutheran, Mrs. Olney Cook, chairman; St. Joan of Arc Catholic, Miss Maude Shelton, chairman; St. Gregory's Episcopal, Mrs. Helen Jackson, chairman; and the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Clarence Snyder, chairman.

Varian Exhibition Open At Parnassus to Sept. 10

Woodstock, Aug. 25—An exhibition of oil and gouache paintings by Dorothy Varian, an artist with a composed and brilliant style, opened at the Parnassus Square Galleries, Sunday afternoon. There is no confusion whatsoever in the world Miss Varian views around here and she has delineated it in sure, luminous values and clarity of line. All of her statements are simply and effectively defined.

Although a refreshing simplicity is characteristic of all of her paintings, the artist has nevertheless captured a glittering oriental lavish quality in Ragini Devi at the Little Dance Theatre, and there is an appealing charm in the two wistful seated figures in Fruit Cafe.

Studio with White Screen is intriguing and her sailing boats and seawall is fresh and clear. Bold and amusing, The Only One in the Puddle demands attention and Cow, Cow, I and Thou, Looking in Each Other's Eyes is not only delightful on close inspection but powerful and contains exceeding depth from a distance.

The "Horse's Tail" in the Rain is a rare street corner scene gay with colored umbrellas and her Studio with Pink Screen is dynamic. El Marino is sharply satiric and exquisitely handled.

The exhibition will be on view through September 10.

Two Mechanics Burned in Blast Of Boat's Engine

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Two mechanics were burned yesterday when the engine of a sloop on which they were working exploded and blew them into Long Island sound off City Island, the Bronx.

Neither was seriously injured and they went home after treatment at the Harlem Yacht Club.

The men are George Braun, 35, of 567 Minneford street, City Island, and Charles Connolly, 30, of New Rochelle.

They were working on the engine of the 24-foot auxiliary sloop "Go For Broken" when the explosion and resultant fire occurred. They were rescued from the water by persons in nearby boats.

Braun suffered burns of the arms and shoulders, and Connolly's legs were burned.

The sloop, owned by Celia Dwyer, of 2295 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, drifted into the sound and was taken in tow by a coast guard patrol boat.

The badly burned sloop was beached near Rodman's Neck, City Island, in Eastchester Bay.

Scout Camp Stays Open After Report Of One Polio Case

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The health department disclosed yesterday that an assistant scoutmaster at the Boy Scout camp, Ten Mile River, Narrowsburg, N. Y., was stricken with polio a day after he left the camp, but the authorities decided to keep the camp open.

The victim was identified as Chester Irony, of 2747 Sedgwick avenue, the Bronx. He contracted the disease on Aug. 17.

The decision to keep open the camp, with 1,500 Boy Scouts, was made by local physicians at the camp and approved by Dr. Harold Jacobziner, assistant commissioner of health in New York city and chairman of the health and welfare committee of the Boy Scout Council.

Two Boys Inoculated

The two boys who occupied the tent with the stricken scoutmaster had been given gamma globulin, a possible polio preventive, on Friday in Liberty, N. Y.

Dr. Jacobziner was reported to have recommended that the camp not ask for gamma globulin for the rest of the campers.

However, Dr. John F. Mahoney, the health commissioner, telephoned the U. S. Public Health Service and the Office of Defense Mobilization in Washington yesterday, asking for release of additional supplies of G.G. for children who had been in camps where polio has appeared.

Globulin Not Available

Meanwhile, a nine-member delegation from a Far Rockaway Colony, where a case of polio had previously appeared, was told that their request for gamma globulin for 80 children could not be granted because supplies were not available.

A request for mass inoculation by Wappingers Falls, Dutchess county, where eight polio cases and two deaths were registered during the past three weeks was turned down by the New York State Department of Health. A spokesman for the department said mass inoculations are given only on the county basis and he did not term the Dutchess county situation as critical.

Dutchess county suffered a total of 30 polio cases this season.

Two Mechanics Burned in Blast Of Boat's Engine

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Two mechanics were burned yesterday when the engine of a sloop on which they were working exploded and blew them into Long Island sound off City Island, the Bronx.

Neither was seriously injured and they went home after treatment at the Harlem Yacht Club.

The men are George Braun, 35, of 567 Minneford street, City Island, and Charles Connolly, 30, of New Rochelle.

They were working on the engine of the 24-foot auxiliary sloop "Go For Broken" when the explosion and resultant fire occurred. They were rescued from the water by persons in nearby boats.

Braun suffered burns of the arms and shoulders, and Connolly's legs were burned.

The sloop, owned by Celia Dwyer, of 2295 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, drifted into the sound and was taken in tow by a coast guard patrol boat.

The badly burned sloop was beached near Rodman's Neck, City Island, in Eastchester Bay.

Scout Camp Stays Open After Report Of One Polio Case

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The health department disclosed yesterday that an assistant scoutmaster at the Boy Scout camp, Ten Mile River, Narrowsburg, N. Y., was stricken with polio a day after he left the camp, but the authorities decided to keep the camp open.

The victim was identified as Chester Irony, of 2747 Sedgwick avenue, the Bronx. He contracted the disease on Aug. 17.

The decision to keep open the camp, with 1,500 Boy Scouts, was made by local physicians at the camp and approved by Dr. Harold Jacobziner, assistant commissioner of health in New York city and chairman of the health and welfare committee of the Boy Scout Council.

Two Boys Inoculated

The two boys who occupied the tent with the stricken scoutmaster had been given gamma globulin, a possible polio preventive, on Friday in Liberty, N. Y.

Dr. Jacobziner was reported to have recommended that the camp not ask for gamma globulin for the rest of the campers.

However, Dr. John F. Mahoney, the health commissioner, telephoned the U. S. Public Health Service and the Office of Defense Mobilization in Washington yesterday, asking for release of additional supplies of G.G. for children who had been in camps where polio has appeared.

Globulin Not Available

Meanwhile, a nine-member delegation from a Far Rockaway Colony, where a case of polio had previously appeared, was told that their request for gamma globulin for 80 children could not be granted because supplies were not available.

A request for mass inoculation by Wappingers Falls, Dutchess county, where eight polio cases and two deaths were registered during the past three weeks was turned down by the New York State Department of Health. A spokesman for the department said mass inoculations are given only on the county basis and he did not term the Dutchess county situation as critical.

Dutchess county suffered a total of 30 polio cases this season.

So you can see why Smokey needs your help—our forest resources are certainly worth protecting, worth keeping free from fire. The sad truth is that 9 out of every 10 forest fires are started by careless Americans. And that is why Smokey keeps hammering away for care with fire to keep our precious forests from going up in smoke.

BABY SITTER

A girl writes: "When mother has guests in for cards, which she often does, and one of them can't get a baby sitter for her children, mother asks me to go and sit with them. I don't mind doing this, but mother thinks that I should not accept any payment for this because the people I'm sitting for are her guests. It seems unfair to me but I thought I would write to you first for your opinion before making an issue of it."

The first time you could not ask for payment. On the other hand, if they ask you again you can say you have to charge as any other baby sitter does.

Shaking Hands

Dear Mrs. Post: I quake, literally, when it comes to decide whether or not to shake hands with someone. I never know, and the only reason it is really important to me is that I don't wish to hurt anyone's feelings or, of course, be thought rude. Could you give me a brief guide for the times a woman ought to offer her hand?

Answer: If it is in your house or your office you, of course must offer your hand — not to do so would be very rude. Anywhere else the only rudeness is refusing a hand offered to you.

Introducing New Employes

Dear Mrs. Post: I always have thought that a man should be introduced to a woman, with few exceptions. That is, a high church prelate or royalty and the President, but otherwise not. Therefore, as it is my duty to introduce new girls who come to work in our office to the different executives, I always introduce the men to the women. This has met with raised eyebrows by some of the men who feel, I guess, that it belittles their positions. Are they right?

Answer: Regardless of who they are, the new employes have to be introduced to the older employes. You should say, "Mrs. (or Mr. or Miss) Executive, this is Miss Smith, our new employe," or "Mr. Clerk, this is Mr. Newclerk." This is Miss Smith who is to be in your department."

On what occasions do gentlemen lift their hats, or remove them? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Successful Young Star Gives Advice To Hopefuls: Work

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The American stage would progress faster if young actors would spend less time trying to express themselves and more time studying their scripts, says Audrey Hepburn, young European hoyden who is being billed at the hottest movie discovery since Garbo.

With one movie to her credit, the lissome brunette Audrey arrived in New York to find herself literally the toast of the town, with mannequins in her image decorating the Fifth avenue windows of one of the big town's top specialty shops, with her picture blazoned from billboards and posters, with stories about her filling the theatrical columns of the newspapers and with her hotel suite flooded with flowers, telegrams and messages from admirers.

This is the sort of thing that might be expected to turn the head of almost any 24-year-old girl, who had lived through the occupation of her native Belgium during the war years, had worked hard and long to become a professional dancer and then, by a stroke of luck, had been chosen to play the lead in one of Hollywood's super-productions, "Roman Holiday," filmed in Rome with that first-caliber star, Gregory Peck.

But Audrey, who can look at times like a 12-year-old boy and at times like a 24-year-old siren, isn't assuming the usual Hollywood prima donna airs. Maybe that's because she has not yet been to Hollywood, since her current picture was filmed entirely in Italy. Whatever the reason, she has a surprising modesty, remarking:

Says She Must Learn

"I have such a lot to learn, and I am so grateful to those who have helped me. I feel that I must work and study to live up to the standard they have set for me, and that I must listen carefully to those who have more experience than I."

Asked for her advice to young actresses hoping to crack the big-time, Audrey listed the following hints:

1—You must have talent — if you don't, all the schools in the world won't help.

2—You must have enormous determination to achieve your goal, be willing to grasp an opportunity, and not be too choosy as to roles.

3—You must have the capacity and desire for hard work—do everything with everything you've got. Sometimes if you work just a little harder than everybody else, it makes all the difference between success and mediocrity.

4—You must maintain an open mind and a sort of humility, and be willing to take advice from others who are older and wiser in the ways of the theatre.

Audrey, daughter of an Irish father and a Dutch mother, was schooled in England, returned to Belgium and Holland shortly after the occupation of Poland, and during her early teen years saw her family suffer bitter want. For five years she did not have a good meal, but she continued her ballet studies, and gave concerts behind locked doors to raise funds for the resistance movement.

After the war she had parts in several British movies, then was spotted by the famous Parisan novelist, Colette, who immediately signed her for the leading role in her play, "Gigi," about to be produced on Broadway.

Audrey's success in the play is history. She was hailed as a new and refreshing personality, compared to Maude Adams in "Peter Pan" and Jeanne Eagels in "Rain." Among those who viewed the new star was Hollywood producer, William Wyler, who decided she was the one choice to play the part of the errant princess in "Roman Holiday."

Now Audrey is approaching her first entrance into Hollywood with startling humility. Says she: "I won't have time to get married, or do anything much except work for the next few years. I have to study and learn, and hope to become a great actress. After that I can think of other things."

BABY SITTER

A girl writes: "When mother has guests in for cards, which she often does, and one of them can't get a baby sitter for her children, mother asks me to go and sit with them. I don't mind doing this, but mother thinks that I should not accept any payment for this because the people I'm sitting for are her guests. It seems unfair to me but I thought I would write to you first for your opinion before making an issue of it."

The first time you could not ask for payment. On the other hand, if they ask you again you can say you have to charge as any other baby sitter does.

Shaking Hands

Dear Mrs. Post: I quake, literally, when it comes to decide whether or not to shake hands with someone. I never know, and the only reason it is really important to me is that I don't wish to hurt anyone's feelings or, of course, be thought rude. Could you give me a brief guide for the times a woman ought to offer her hand?

Answer: If it is in your house or your office you, of course must offer your hand — not to do so would be very rude. Anywhere else the only rudeness is refusing a hand offered to you.

Introducing New Employes

Dear Mrs. Post: I always have thought that a man should be introduced to a woman, with few exceptions. That is, a high church prelate or royalty and the President, but otherwise not. Therefore, as it is my duty to introduce new girls who come to work in our office to the different executives, I always introduce the men to the women. This has met with raised eyebrows by some of the men who feel, I guess, that it belittles their positions. Are they right?

Answer: Regardless of who they are, the new employes have to be introduced to the older employes. You should say, "Mrs. (or Mr. or Miss) Executive, this is Miss Smith, our new employe," or "Mr. Clerk, this is Mr. Newclerk." This is Miss Smith who is to be in your department."

On what occasions do gentlemen lift their hats, or remove them? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Successful Young Star Gives Advice To Hopefuls: Work

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The American stage would progress faster if young actors would spend less time trying to express themselves and more time studying their scripts, says Audrey Hepburn, young European hoyden who is being billed at the hottest movie discovery since Garbo.

With one movie to her credit, the lissome brunette Audrey arrived in New York to find herself literally the toast of the town, with mannequins in her image decorating the Fifth avenue windows of one of the big town's top specialty shops, with her picture blazoned from billboards and posters, with stories about her filling the theatrical columns of the newspapers and with her hotel suite flooded with flowers, telegrams and messages from admirers.

This is the sort of thing that might be expected to turn the head of almost any 24-year-old girl, who had lived through the occupation of her native Belgium during the war years, had worked hard and long to become a professional dancer and then, by a stroke of luck, had been chosen to play the lead in one of Hollywood's super-productions, "Roman Holiday," filmed in Rome with that first-caliber star, Gregory Peck.

But Audrey, who can look at times like a 12-year-old boy and at times like a 24-year-old siren, isn't assuming the usual Hollywood prima donna airs. Maybe that's because she has not yet been to Hollywood, since her current picture was filmed entirely in Italy. Whatever the reason, she has a surprising modesty, remarking:

Says She Must Learn

"I have such a lot to learn, and I am so grateful to those who have helped me. I feel that I must work and study to live up to the standard they have set for me, and that I must listen carefully to those who have more experience than I."

Asked for her advice to young actresses hoping to crack the big-time, Audrey listed the following hints:

1—You must have talent — if you don't, all the schools in the world won't help.

2—You must have enormous determination to achieve your goal, be willing to grasp an opportunity, and not be too choosy as to roles.

3—You must have the capacity and desire for hard work—do everything with everything you've got. Sometimes if you work just a little harder than everybody else, it makes all the difference between success and mediocrity.

4—You must maintain an open mind and a sort of humility, and be willing to take advice from others who are older and wiser in the ways of the theatre.

Audrey, daughter of an Irish father and a Dutch mother, was schooled in England, returned to Belgium and Holland shortly after the occupation of Poland, and during her early teen years saw her family suffer bitter want. For five years she did not have a good meal, but she continued her ballet studies, and gave concerts behind locked doors to raise funds for the resistance movement.

After the war she had parts in several British movies, then was spotted by the famous Parisan novelist, Colette, who immediately signed her for the leading role in her play, "Gigi," about to be produced on Broadway.

Audrey's success in the play is history. She was hailed as a new and refreshing personality, compared to Maude Adams in "Peter Pan" and Jeanne Eagels in "Rain." Among those who viewed the new star was Hollywood producer, William Wyler, who decided she was the one choice to play the part of the errant princess in "Roman Holiday."

Now Audrey is approaching her first entrance into Hollywood with startling humility. Says she:

"I won't have time to get married, or do anything much except work for the next few years. I have to study and learn, and hope to become a great actress. After that I can think of other things."

Freed POW Denies Being Communist; Was at Lectures

New York, Aug. 24 (AP) — An American soldier, who said he voluntarily attended Communist lectures in a North Korean prison camp, said today he was not a Communist and "I never will be."

Cpl. Harold M. Dunn, 23, of Baldwinsville, said his fellow prisoners used to curse him for attending the lectures.

"I wanted to get the other side of the picture—I wanted to hear what they had to say," the tall youth explained as he arrived here by plane among the first group of prisoners freed by the armistice.

"Now I know, it isn't so good," he continued. "Since my return, I found out that they did quite a bit of lying. I know some people are saying things about me, but I knew what I was doing. I'm not worried about it. I knew nothing of politics, one side or the other."

He said he realized "what I was risking, but we have freedom of thought in America and I intended to use it."

Didn't Like Force

He said that at first prisoners were forced to study communist doctrines and he resented this.

"I didn't go for that, I don't like force," he said.

When the lectures became voluntary, Dunn said he went to them.

About six months before his release, he said, the abuse from his fellow prisoners stopped and now he has "quite a few good buddies" among the men who wouldn't listen to the communist line.

Dunn said he felt the "progressive" label, hung on men who attended the lectures, has been misunderstood. He said he did nothing else to cooperate with his captors.

He said among the lies he heard at the lectures were statements that North Korean prisoners were released from South Korean camps before the truce through the "connivance" of American troops.

This sounded "logical at first" he said, adding, he later learned that it was not so.

Given Books by Reds

He said the Communists gave him more books to read than he could remember, talked about "the Peekskill riots" of 1949 (when townspeople tried to break up lift wing rallies, and stressed racial discrimination in America in their lectures).

But, he noticed, they gave preference to Negroes in his camp but segregated them in another.

Some Americans remained behind in North Korea voluntarily, he said. He refused to say how many on the ground that this information is restricted.

Dunn, who wears the combat infantryman's badge, the Purple Heart and the Japan service ribbon, plans to make the army his career. Almost half of his six years in service have been spent as a Communist prisoner.

VIP Handles Note

St. Louis, Aug. 24 (AP)—"How about delivering this note for me?" A secretary turned telephone operator here asked this question of the man at the next switchboard. Both were on duty because of the strike of CIO Communication Workers against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. "Sure," replied the man who was an assistant vice president although the girl didn't know it. While he was on the errand someone told the secretary. "Well," she said, "how was I to know that I drew a VIP?" The note was to her boyfriend on the next floor.

Dispute Halts Transfer

Detroit, Aug. 24 (AP)—A jurisdictional dispute today halted the transfer of equipment from the General Motors burned-out Livonia transmission plant to Kaiser Motors' Willow Run factory. Two thousand CIO United Automobile Workers placed picket lines around the main gate at the Willow Run plant, halting trucks bringing equipment from nearby Livonia. Picket line spokesmen said GM was employing members of the AFL Teamsters Union to transfer the equipment, The UAW said this was work which idle Kaiser and GM employes could do under their contracts.

VA Studies Assistance Given to GI Parents

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Veterans Administration is making its first check on the financial status of parents who are receiving compensation for the deaths of sons or daughters in World War 2. They are not entitled to the compensation unless dependent on such income.

VA officials said today that all parents now receiving compensation are being sent questionnaires asking about their income and expenses.

Under law, a spokesman explained, a parent can be granted compensation for the death of a son or daughter only if dependency on that child can be shown. Such dependency need not have existed prior to the death of the child nor for sometime thereafter. For instance, a parent who was working and self-supporting at the time of the child's death might now be ill. But the element of dependency must be proven for a parent to receive compensation.

Jacoby on Canasta

Learn When and How to Meld

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"When the opponents take a large discard pile to begin the melding in a hand, what is the correct procedure for the unfortunate underdog? Should the next player immediately meld, or should he leave it up to his partner? After the unlucky side has melded, how should they continue?"

If the player at your right takes the first large discard pile to begin the melding for a hand, you should meld at once if you can do so with a large number of natural cards. You should not meld, however, if you must use a large number of wild cards.

Your object is to get a base of four natural cards down on the table so that your side can speedily meld a canasta and meld out. Natural cards are useful for this purpose, but wild cards should be saved to add to a base or to help you meld out.

If you have the first chance to meld and fail to do so, your partner should leap into the breach. He should meld if he can make the minimum count with a large number of natural cards that are likely to provide a base for a canasta.

If neither member of the partnership can meld at the first opportunity, it is up to you to reconsider. You can now think about putting down a meld that includes a couple of wild cards—but only if the natural cards in this meld are likely to fit your partner's hand.

For example, you may have a pair of queens in your hand and you may remember that your partner has never discarded a queen and that the opponents have not melded queens. There is therefore reason to hope that the queens will fit your partner's hand (to put it another way, your partner will probably be able to add to the queens). You therefore put down an initial meld which includes those queens and whatever number of wild cards may be necessary to make the initial count.

Once your side has made the initial meld, both partners must concentrate on melding out with all possible speed. Don't fight for the pack, and don't try to hold the cards that the opponents need. The most effective defense is to meld out quickly, and you cannot do that if you clutter up your hand with useless cards.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Thurber Makes Appeal

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Author-cartoonist James Thurber, who is nearly blind, made an urgent appeal today for help in finding his eye doctor—to treat his wife. She, too, has developed a serious, and sudden, eye ailment. Thurber said his eye specialist, Dr. Gordon Bruce, is somewhere in Colorado, visiting some small ranches which have no telephones, and intensive efforts to reach him have been in vain. He expressed hope that news services or radio might be able to get word to the doctor, so he could fly here to treat "my seeing-eye wife who has led me around for years."

New York, Aug. 24 (AP) — An American soldier, who said he voluntarily attended Communist lectures in a North Korean prison camp, said today he was not a Communist and "I never will be."

Cpl. Harold M. Dunn, 23, of Baldwinsville, said his fellow prisoners used to curse him for attending the lectures.

"I wanted to get the other side of the picture—I wanted to hear what they had to say," the tall youth explained as he arrived here by plane among the first group of prisoners freed by the armistice.

"Now I know, it isn't so good," he continued. "Since my return, I found out that they did quite a bit of lying. I know some people are saying things about me, but I knew what I was doing. I'm not worried about it. I knew nothing of politics, one side or the other."

He said he realized "what I was risking, but we have freedom of thought in America and I intended to use it."

Didn't Like Force

He said that at first prisoners were forced to study communist doctrines and he resented this.

"I didn't go for that, I don't like force," he said.

When the lectures became voluntary, Dunn said he went to them.

About six months before his release, he said, the abuse from his fellow prisoners stopped and now he has "quite a few good buddies" among the men who wouldn't listen to the communist line.

Dunn said he felt the "progressive" label, hung on men who attended the lectures, has been misunderstood. He said he did nothing else to cooperate with his captors.

He said among the lies he heard at the lectures were statements that North Korean prisoners were released from South Korean camps before the truce through the "connivance" of American troops.

This sounded "logical at first" he said, adding, he later learned that it was not so.

Given Books by Reds

He said the Communists gave him more books to read than he could remember, talked about "the Peekskill riots" of 1949 (when townspeople tried to break up lift wing rallies, and stressed racial discrimination in America in their lectures).

But, he noticed, they gave preference to Negroes in his camp but segregated them in another.

Some Americans remained behind in North Korea voluntarily, he said. He refused to say how many on the ground that this information is restricted.

Dunn, who wears the combat infantryman's badge, the Purple Heart and the Japan service ribbon, plans to make the army his career. Almost half of his six years in service have been spent as a Communist prisoner.

VIP Handles Note

St. Louis, Aug. 24 (AP)—"How about delivering this note for me?" A secretary turned telephone operator here asked this question of the man at the next switchboard. Both were on duty because of the strike of CIO Communication Workers against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. "Sure," replied the man who was an assistant vice president although the girl didn't know it. While he was on the errand someone told the secretary. "Well," she said, "how was I to know that I drew a VIP?" The note was to her boyfriend on the next floor.

Dispute Halts Transfer

Detroit, Aug. 24 (AP)—A jurisdictional dispute today halted the transfer of equipment from the General Motors burned-out Livonia transmission plant to Kaiser Motors' Willow Run factory. Two thousand CIO United Automobile Workers placed picket lines around the main gate at the Willow Run plant, halting trucks bringing equipment from nearby Livonia. Picket line spokesmen said GM was employing members of the AFL Teamsters Union to transfer the equipment, The UAW said this was work which idle Kaiser and GM employes could do under their contracts.

Ready to Plan for Legal Test

With the former airman are his mother, Mrs. Nettie Merz, left, and sister, Miss Audrey Toth, of Pittsburgh, who came to meet him. Toth is in Washington, D.C., for a federal hearing to test the legality of the law under which the Air Force arrested him as a civilian and flew him to Korea on a murder charge.

VA Studies Assistance Given to GI Parents

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Veterans Administration is making its first check on the financial status of parents who are receiving compensation for the deaths of sons or daughters in World War 2. They are not entitled to the compensation unless dependent on such income.

VA officials said today that all parents now receiving compensation are being sent questionnaires asking about their income and expenses.

Under law, a spokesman explained, a parent can be granted compensation for the death of a son or daughter only if dependency on that child can be shown. Such dependency need not have existed prior to the death of the child nor for sometime thereafter. For instance, a parent who was working and self-supporting at the time of the child's death might now be ill. But the element of dependency must be proven for a parent to receive compensation.

Learn When and How to Meld

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"When the opponents take a large discard pile to begin the melding in a hand, what is the correct procedure for the unfortunate underdog? Should the next player immediately meld, or should he leave it up to his partner? After the unlucky side has melded, how should they continue?"

If the player at your right takes the first large discard pile to begin the melding for a hand, you should meld at once if you can do so with a large number of natural cards. You should not meld, however, if you must use a large number of wild cards.

Your object is to get a base of four natural cards down on the table so that your side can speedily meld a canasta and meld out. Natural cards are useful for this purpose, but wild cards should be saved to add to a base or to help you meld out.

If you have the first chance to meld and fail to do so, your partner should leap into the breach. He should meld if he can make the minimum count with a large number of natural cards that are likely to provide a base for a canasta.

If neither member of the partnership can meld at the first opportunity, it is up to you to reconsider. You can now think about putting down a meld that includes a couple of wild cards—but only if the natural cards in this meld are likely to fit your partner's hand.

For example, you may have a pair of queens in your hand and you may remember that your partner has never discarded a queen and that the opponents have not melded queens. There is therefore reason to hope that the queens will fit your partner's hand (to put it another way, your partner will probably be able to add to the queens). You therefore put down an initial meld which includes those queens and whatever number of wild cards may be necessary to make the initial count.

Once your side has made the initial meld, both partners must concentrate on melding out with all possible speed. Don't fight for the pack, and don't try to hold the cards that the opponents need. The most effective defense is to meld out quickly, and you cannot do that if you clutter up your hand with useless cards.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Thurber Makes Appeal

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Author-cartoonist James Thurber, who is nearly blind, made an urgent appeal today for help in finding his eye doctor—to treat his wife. She, too, has developed a serious, and sudden, eye ailment. Thurber said his eye specialist, Dr. Gordon Bruce, is somewhere in Colorado, visiting some small ranches which have no telephones, and intensive efforts to reach him have been in vain. He expressed hope that news services or radio might be able to get word to the doctor, so he could fly here to treat "my seeing-eye wife who has led me around for years."

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unless the Milwaukee Braves and Chicago White Sox can find a way to repeal the law of averages, Brooklyn should win the National League by 12 games and New York should win the American by nine.

A survey today of the remaining games of the top two clubs in each of the leagues showed:

1. The Dodgers should win 21 and lose 11 the rest of the season, giving them a final total of 105 victories and 49 defeats.

2. The Braves should have a 17-13 record the rest of way and an overall standing of 93-61.

3. The Yankees can be expected to win 20 and lose 12, giving them 103-51 for the year.

4. The White Sox figure to win 19 and lose 12, which would leave them 94-60 at the end.

This law of averages has been evaded in the past, but not often. These are some of the hard, cold facts the Braves must face.

They have 30 games left to play, divided exactly in half between first and second division teams. So far this year they've won 27 and lost 24 against clubs now in the first division. This would figure to give them an 8-7 break the rest of the way. Against second division foes the Braves stand 49-36. This is equal to a 9-6 split in the last 15 games, and a total of 17-13.

That won't be enough to make even a dent in the Dodgers' current nine game edge if Brooklyn keeps up anything like the pace it has traveled so far.

The Dodgers have 18 games left with other first division teams but so far they have a 30-18 record against them and this would mean a 11-7 division of the remaining contest. Brooklyn has feasted on the also-rans this year, winning 54 of 74 meetings. This equals a 10-4 break and a total of 21-11.

In the American League there isn't much to choose between the prospective records of the Yankees and the White Sox but the Yanks currently lead by 8½ games less than Chicago.

Prize Winners in Fishing Contest for Children

Winners in the fishing contest sponsored by the Kingston Recreation Department, Monday, at Chick Miller's dock, Eddyville, receive their prizes of rods and reels furnished by Better Fishing, Inc., which carries out the custom throughout the nation. From left are Andrew J. Murphy 3rd, superintendent of the Kingston Recreation Department and Attorney S. C. Mehm and D. East Take First Prize in Fishing Rodeo

Six-year-old Clare Mehm and Don East of George Washington School Playground, captured first prizes in the fourth annual Better Fishing Rodeo yesterday at the Chick Miller boat dock on the Rondout.

Miss Mehm was a singular prize winner, since at 2 p. m., the deadline, she was the only girl who had hooked a fish. It was a two-ounce sunfish.

Young East nosed out Mike Perry of St. Mary's Park for boys' honors with a 6-ounce rock bass. Mike came up with a 5½-ounce sunfish.

Sponsored by the Recreation Department in conjunction with the national organization, Better Fishing, Inc., the annual rodeo attracted more than 200 young boys and girls.

A Gala Day

Using all types of fishing equipment, from the home-made, Huckleberry Finn to dad's newest glass rod, the young anglers had a great time and wound up the day consuming huge quantities of hot dogs and soda. The donors included Schwenk's Bakery, Woods Bottling Works, Zeeh's Bottling Works, Forst Formost, F. B. Matthews, and Thompson's Meat Co.

Miss Mehm walked off with a complete fishing outfit awarded by Better Fishing, Inc., a non-profit, non-commercial organization devoted to encouraging the sport among youngsters. Danny Landi of Hutton Park received a consolation prize for catching the largest mess of fish—14 of mixed variety—but none large enough to cop first place.

The Recreation Department committee was assisted by Jimmy Matthews, an ardent fisherman, who helped bait hooks and untangle lines for the small fry. He and Acting Mayor Joe Kelly awarded the prizes.

Tony Turck Receives Decision Over Mains

FYL Standings

The Elks needed only one inning to nail down the 1953 Fraternal Youth League pennant yesterday at municipal stadium.

They scored three times in the second off Bob Maines then checked an American Legion rally at two runs in the bottom of the fifth to cop a 3-2 decision.

The game was halted because of darkness.

The victory was the ninth in 10 starts for the Elks who have a 2½ game edge over the second place American Legion, which has only one game left to play. A Legion triumph yesterday would have tied the teams in the loss column.

Turck Wins Fourth

Tony Turck spun a 4-hitter to gain his third victory of the season without a setback. He walked two and fanned 9. Bob Maines permitted only three hits and whiffed six but his defense collapsed in the fatal second.

Jim Nerone tripled to launch the second inning rally and scored when Maines couldn't make up his mind where to throw on Bob Burns' tap to the box. Burns reached first safely and went to second on a passed ball and moved to third on Don Duffy's miscue.

Maines retired the next two batters but walked Hornbeck. He then uncorked a wild pitch permitting Burns to score and Hornbeck to reach third. Duffy's second error of the frame scored Hornbeck with the final marker.

Legion Rallies

The Legion kicked up a storm in the onrushing darkness of the fifth when Bob Weishaupt walked and Don Duffy got a life on Jim Palumbo's error. Eric Blackwell's error moved Weishaupt to third and Ron Ferraro's single to right field delivered him for a 3-1 score. Bill Cragan's error sent Duffy home with the second run. Ferraro reached second and Tony Amato's single sent him to third. Bobby Dykes had a chance to square it at 3-3 but took a called third strike to end the contest.

No player on either side had more than one hit. Nerone's triple was the only extra baser of the game.

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unless the Milwaukee Braves and Chicago White Sox can find a way to repeal the law of averages, Brooklyn should win the National League by 12 games and New York should win the American by nine.

A survey today of the remaining games of the top two clubs in each of the leagues showed:

1. The Dodgers should win 21 and lose 11 the rest of the season, giving them a final total of 105 victories and 49 defeats.

2. The Braves should have a 17-13 record the rest of way and an overall standing of 93-61.

Three Kingston pitchers—Tom Spada, Ben Freer and Ed Lowe—combined to hold the Bushmen to 11 hits and were effective in the pinches.

An eight-run rally in the fifth insured the Kingston triumph. Don Riehl, Bob Graves and Bob Schatzel had two hits each for the locals. Riehl and Bud Leininger clubbed triples atnd Bill Tierney clouted a homer.

Four Pine Bush players had two hits apiece, with Edmunds stroking a double and single. Ben Freer was credited with the victory.

Prize Winners in Fishing Contest for Children

C. Mehm and D. East Take First Prize in Fishing Rodeo

Six-year-old Clare Mehm and Don East of George Washington School Playground, captured first prizes in the fourth annual Better Fishing Rodeo yesterday at the Chick Miller boat dock on the Rondout.

Miss Mehm was a singular prize winner, since at 2 p. m., the deadline, she was the only girl who had hooked a fish. It was a two-ounce sunfish.

Young East nosed out Mike Perry of St. Mary's Park for boys' honors with a 6-ounce rock bass. Mike came up with a 5½-ounce sunfish.

Sponsored by the Recreation Department in conjunction with the national organization, Better Fishing, Inc., the annual rodeo attracted more than 200 young boys and girls.

A Gala Day

Using all types of fishing equipment, from the home-made, Huckleberry Finn to dad's newest glass rod, the young anglers had a great time and wound up the day consuming huge quantities of hot dogs and soda. The donors included Schwenk's Bakery, Woods Bottling Works, Zeeh's Bottling Works, Forst Formost, F. B. Matthews, and Thompson's Meat Co.

Miss Mehm walked off with a complete fishing outfit awarded by Better Fishing, Inc., a non-profit, non-commercial organization devoted to encouraging the sport among youngsters. Danny Landi of Hutton Park received a consolation prize for catching the largest mess of fish—14 of mixed variety—but none large enough to cop first place.

The Recreation Department committee was assisted by Jimmy Matthews, an ardent fisherman, who helped bait hooks and untangle lines for the small fry. He and Acting Mayor Joe Kelly awarded the prizes.

The Elks needed only one inning to nail down the 1953 Fraternal Youth League pennant yesterday at municipal stadium.

They scored three times in the second off Bob Maines then checked an American Legion rally at two runs in the bottom of the fifth to cop a 3-2 decision.

The game was halted because of darkness.

The victory was the ninth in 10 starts for the Elks who have a 2½ game edge over the second place American Legion, which has only one game left to play. A Legion triumph yesterday would have tied the teams in the loss column.

Turck Wins Fourth

Tony Turck spun a 4-hitter to gain his third victory of the season without a setback. He walked two and fanned 9. Bob Maines permitted only three hits and whiffed six but his defense collapsed in the fatal second.

Jim Nerone tripled to launch the second inning rally and scored when Maines couldn't make up his mind where to throw on Bob Burns' tap to the box. Burns reached first safely and went to second on a passed ball and moved to third on Don Duffy's miscue.

Maines retired the next two batters but walked Hornbeck. He then uncorked a wild pitch permitting Burns to score and Hornbeck to reach third. Duffy's second error of the frame scored Hornbeck with the final marker.

Legion Rallies

The Legion kicked up a storm in the onrushing darkness of the fifth when Bob Weishaupt walked and Don Duffy got a life on Jim Palumbo's error. Eric Blackwell's error moved Weishaupt to third and Ron Ferraro's single to right field delivered him for a 3-1 score. Bill Cragan's error sent Duffy home with the second run. Ferraro reached second and Tony Amato's single sent him to third. Bobby Dykes had a chance to square it at 3-3 but took a called third strike to end the contest.

No player on either side had more than one hit. Nerone's triple was the only extra baser of the game.

Police and Lawyers Announce Rosters for Wednesday's Game

Obviously believing the old adage that in numbers there is strength—and frequent relief—the Ulster County Bar Association today announced a 21-man roster for its baseball game with the Kingston Patrolmen's Association team Wednesday night at municipal stadium.

The annual Police promotion for the KPA's Welfare Fund will be preceded by an exhibition contest between the Police Juniors and champion Elks of the Fraternal Youth League.

The first game is scheduled at 6:30 p. m., with the cops and lawyers clashing on the friendly field of baseball strife for the first time, immediately after the juniors complete their chore.

Quick Reactions

Announcement of the lawyers' heavy roster brought quick reaction from the Police outfit.

"That proves they're not in shape to go more than a couple innings each," said an unidentified spokesman. "This game will be seven innings long and before it's over Judge Schirick (the lawyer Mgr.) and Jim Abernethy will be serving summonses on every man in their organization to do his duty.

Judge Harry Schirick, the barrister's pilot of the night, expressed complete confidence in his roster. He named District Attorney Howard St. John and Bud Culloton as the probable pitchers.

"We're in good shape on the mound with the DA and Bud in there," he said. "The DA has looked very sharp and if his arm holds out for three innings we can't lose. Culloton will stop them the rest of the way."

Pressed for information on St. Johns' reported "secret" pitch, the judge blandly remarked:

"The jury is still out on that one. Right now it looks like a cross between a slider and a lazy curve. Whatever it is, the cops won't see much of it."

Police Confident

Supremely confident Police tossers went through an extensive workout Monday and predicted that Manager Len Ellsworth and Francis Loeffler might easily combine to pitch a shutout.

"From what I hear," remarked one of the cops," the lawyers have more golfers than ball players in their lineup. They'll have the wrong clubs Wednesday night and, whether they use the interlock or the overlap, they'll wish they had a tennis racket when Ellsworth and Loeffler start buzzing them by."

Another cop said the only source of concern to the Police nine would be the dieting Fred "Fritz" Bruhn.

"We could have handled Fritzie a couple months ago," said a Police regular, "but since he went on that diet they say he's faster than Bobby Thomson."

"If these guys think Durocher is tough," observed another barrister, "wait until they hear the old judge on the coaching lines. Heaven help those cops if they have any rabbit ears in the camp."

Lineups Listed

Just for the record, among those who will be exposed to the shenanigans at the stadium tomorrow night, you find such prominent legal lights as District Attorney Howard St. John, his assistant, James Abernethy, president of the Bar Association; Sherwood Davis, Charles H. Gaffney, Abe Molyneaux, Richard Overbagh, Hubert Richter, Seymour Werbalowsky, N. Jansen Fowler.

Also listed are S. James Matthews, Thomas F. Saccoman, Ernest Schirmer, Robert Carnright, Morris Rosenbloom, Louis G. Bruhn, Fritz Bruhn, Vincent Pretsch, Robert D. Stapleton, Joseph D. Saccoman, William M. Gruner, Frank Decker, Arthur C. Ames and of course, Judge Harry E. Schirick and B. A. Culloton.

The Police are going it with only 14 players, obviously sounder of wind and limb than the lawyers. Len Ellsworth will manage and pitch and Francis Loeffler is the other flinger.

The balance of the roster includes Lou Sapp, Jr., 1b; Meyer Levy, 2b; George Dougherty, ss; John Crespino, 3b; Bill Hanley, Joseph Kivlin and Bill Slover will patrol the outfield. Ernest Bartroff is the catcher. Others slated to see action are Everett Emmick, William Norton, Bernard Fowler and Guernsey Burger, Jr.

Police Tossers Stage Batting Practice

Major League Brass Unimpressed By New 'Spokesman' for Players

But Baseball Men See New Era Ahead

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Major League baseball entered a new era today with an official hired spokesman assigned to deal with club owners on behalf of the players.

But just how much good the players' representative would do was fogged in a maze of statements and counter statements.

Commissioner Ford Frick seemed unimpressed with the action of the players, who hired J. Norman Lewis, a New York lawyer, to handle their dealings with their bosses.

Asked what the players had gained by hiring a counsel, Frick shrugged:

"As far as I can see, nothing."

Ralph Kiner, Chicago Cubs' slugger, and Allie Reynolds, ace New York Yankee' pitcher, as the respective player representatives of their leagues, probably were the most instrumental big leaguers in bringing about the move.

Said Kiner:

"We hired him mainly as a counsel, not as a representative."

Reynolds was more explicit.

"We were not getting the job done ourselves," he said, "so we decided on a lawyer to help us. We want him to sit in on meetings with the clubowners and present our side of the case."

The players' side consists mainly of forcing an increase in the minimum wage, now $5,000 per year, eliminating night games on getaway days and dropping night games from the spring training schedules.

Just how far the baseball brass will be willing to go with Lewis remained a moot question. This is the first time the owners have been faced with the problem of having to talk to their hirelings through a legal mind.

Bar Counsel

Baseball's executive council held a meeting yesterday at Frick's office and if battle lines were drawn, it would have to go down as a victory for the bigwigs because Lewis was barred.

Lewis did have a two-hour conference with Frick, William Harridge, president of the American League, and Warren Giles, president of the National League after the meeting broke up. There wasn't much question but that Lewis had hoped to attend the meeting, but Frick was quick to close the gates.

"Under no circumstances can any attorney attend a council meeting except by special invitation," said Frick.

"And I have no intention of inviting anyone who is not a member of baseball," he added pointedly.

Meeting Amicable

For his part, Lewis was not unduly perturbed over being barred.

"Whether I attend the meetings is not important," he observed. "The fact is that I represent the players and am in position to present their proposals. Our only objective is to get the proposals adopted and put into effect. It makes no difference whether I am permitted into their meetings so long as we get results. I'm satisfied we were able to get the responsible persons to submit our proposals to the correct and proper channels."

Both Frick and Lewis agreed that the meeting, though strictly informal, was "most amicable." But neither would say what the players' proposals were.

Police and Lawyers Announce Rosters for Wednesday's Game

Obviously believing the old adage that in numbers there is strength—and frequent relief—the Ulster County Bar Association today announced a 21-man roster for its baseball game with the Kingston Patrolmen's Association team Wednesday night at municipal stadium.

The annual Police promotion for the KPA's Welfare Fund will be preceded by an exhibition contest between the Police Juniors and champion Elks of the Fraternal Youth League.

Announcement of the lawyers' heavy roster brought quick reaction from the Police outfit.

"That proves they're not in shape to go more than a couple innings each," said an unidentified spokesman. "This game will be seven innings long and before it's over Judge Schirick (the lawyer Mgr.) and Jim Abernethy will be serving summonses on every man in their organization to do his duty.

Judge Harry Schirick, the barrister's pilot of the night, expressed complete confidence in his roster. He named District Attorney Howard St. John and Bud Culloton as the probable pitchers.

"We're in good shape on the mound with the DA and Bud in there," he said. "The DA has looked very sharp and if his arm holds out for three innings we can't lose. Culloton will stop them the rest of the way."

Pressed for information on St. Johns' reported "secret" pitch, the judge blandly remarked:

"The jury is still out on that one. Right now it looks like a cross between a slider and a lazy curve. Whatever it is, the cops won't see much of it."

Police Confident

Supremely confident Police tossers went through an extensive workout Monday and predicted that Manager Len Ellsworth and Francis Loeffler might easily combine to pitch a shutout.

"From what I hear," remarked one of the cops," the lawyers have more golfers than ball players in their lineup. They'll have the wrong clubs Wednesday night and, whether they use the interlock or the overlap, they'll wish they had a tennis racket when Ellsworth and Loeffler start buzzing them by."

Another cop said the only source of concern to the Police nine would be the dieting Fred "Fritz" Bruhn.

"We could have handled Fritzie a couple months ago," said a Police regular, "but since he went on that diet they say he's faster than Bobby Thomson."

"If these guys think Durocher is tough," observed another barrister, "wait until they hear the old judge on the coaching lines. Heaven help those cops if they have any rabbit ears in the camp."

Lineups Listed

Just for the record, among those who will be exposed to the shenanigans at the stadium tomorrow night, you find such prominent legal lights as District Attorney Howard St. John, his assistant, James Abernethy, president of the Bar Association; Sherwood Davis, Charles H. Gaffney, Abe Molyneaux, Richard Overbagh, Hubert Richter, Seymour Werbalowsky, N. Jansen Fowler.

Also listed are S. James Matthews, Thomas F. Saccoman, Ernest Schirmer, Robert Carnright, Morris Rosenbloom, Louis G. Bruhn, Fritz Bruhn, Vincent Pretsch, Robert D. Stapleton, Joseph D. Saccoman, William M. Gruner, Frank Decker, Arthur C. Ames and of course, Judge Harry E. Schirick and B. A. Culloton.

The Police are going it with only 14 players, obviously sounder of wind and limb than the lawyers. Len Ellsworth will manage and pitch and Francis Loeffler is the other flinger.

The balance of the roster includes Lou Sapp, Jr., 1b; Meyer Levy, 2b; George Dougherty, ss; John Crespino, 3b; Bill Hanley, Joseph Kivlin and Bill Slover will patrol the outfield. Ernest Bartroff is the catcher. Others slated to see action are Everett Emmick, William Norton, Bernard Fowler and Guernsey Burger, Jr.

Police Tossers Stage Batting Practice

Hilltop Bops Cherny's 6-4 In Softball

Hilltop strengthened its hold on first place in the City Softball League with a 6-4 victory over Cherny's yesterday at Hasbrouck Park.

A big five run fourth inning sent the Hilltoppers ahead 5-4 and they added an insurance marker in the sixth. The losers outhit Hilltop, 13-9, but aside from the second and third innings were not able to dent Joe Enright's serves when it counted. Ed Lowe was charged with the loss.

Ronnie Scheffel and Bill Olen slugged two singles each for the Hilltop. Huyler Van Wagenen and Diamond each had three hits for Cherny's. Jake Carter doubled home two runs for Cherny's in the third.

Garrison Takes Rhinebeck Race

Doug Garrison, the Hudson Heat Wave, roared from almost last position at the halfway mark to first place in the 30-lap feature Saturday at the Rhinebeck Speedway.

Garrison beat off a last minute challenge by Doug Secor. Bill Darragh of Georgetown, Conn., took third money.

Stan Disbrow, Mike Sabato and Irving Roesch copped heat prizes. Garrison and Bud Histman shared the semi-finals.

The largest combination program held in the East this year is scheduled for next Saturday night. There will be a 50-lap stock race and a 50-lap championship midget event, the first of its kind held at Rhinebeck since 1948.

Major League Brass Unimpressed By New 'Spokesman' for Players

But Baseball Men See New Era Ahead

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Major League baseball entered a new era today with an official hired spokesman assigned to deal with club owners on behalf of the players.

But just how much good the players' representative would do was fogged in a maze of statements and counter statements.

Commissioner Ford Frick seemed unimpressed with the action of the players, who hired J. Norman Lewis, a New York lawyer, to handle their dealings with their bosses.

Asked what the players had gained by hiring a counsel, Frick shrugged:

"As far as I can see, nothing."

Ralph Kiner, Chicago Cubs' slugger, and Allie Reynolds, ace New York Yankee' pitcher, as the respective player representatives of their leagues, probably were the most instrumental big leaguers in bringing about the move.

Said Kiner:

"We hired him mainly as a counsel, not as a representative."

Reynolds was more explicit.

"We were not getting the job done ourselves," he said, "so we decided on a lawyer to help us. We want him to sit in on meetings with the clubowners and present our side of the case."

The players' side consists mainly of forcing an increase in the minimum wage, now $5,000 per year, eliminating night games on getaway days and dropping night games from the spring training schedules.

Just how far the baseball brass will be willing to go with Lewis remained a moot question. This is the first time the owners have been faced with the problem of having to talk to their hirelings through a legal mind.

Bar Counsel

Baseball's executive council held a meeting yesterday at Frick's office and if battle lines were drawn, it would have to go down as a victory for the bigwigs because Lewis was barred.

Lewis did have a two-hour conference with Frick, William Harridge, president of the American League, and Warren Giles, president of the National League after the meeting broke up. There wasn't much question but that Lewis had hoped to attend the meeting, but Frick was quick to close the gates.

"Under no circumstances can any attorney attend a council meeting except by special invitation," said Frick.

"And I have no intention of inviting anyone who is not a member of baseball," he added pointedly.

Meeting Amicable

For his part, Lewis was not unduly perturbed over being barred.

"Whether I attend the meetings is not important," he observed. "The fact is that I represent the players and am in position to present their proposals. Our only objective is to get the proposals adopted and put into effect. It makes no difference whether I am permitted into their meetings so long as we get results. I'm satisfied we were able to get the responsible persons to submit our proposals to the correct and proper channels."

Both Frick and Lewis agreed that the meeting, though strictly informal, was "most amicable." But neither would say what the players' proposals were.

He was employed by the Industrial Carrier Corporation of Hudson Falls, listed by troopers as owners of the trailer portion of the vehicle.

Vacationist Dies

Monticello, Aug. 25 (AP)—Morris Silver, 69, vacationing here from his home in Brooklyn, died early this morning in Monticello Hospital after being struck by a car yesterday at Kiamesha Lake.

Bronx Driver Hurt In Gardiner Mishap

Charles Hoctor, Jr., 19, of 912 Logan avenue, Bronx, was taken to Vassar Hospital for treatment of head lacerations, concussion and other possible injuries which state police reported he received about 1:45 a. m. today when his automobile overturned off Route 44-55 at Gardiner.

Troopers said Hoctor was driving east when the vehicle went off the pavement on the north shoulder, continued along the shoulder about 150 feet, then crossed the highway, skidded sideways for another 50 feet and finally overturned. The car was badly damaged, troopers said.

Hoctor was taken to the hospital after receiving treatment at the office of Dr. Walter Rost in New Paltz.

Stokeley Is Held For Grand Jury

Henry Clay Stokeley, 50, of East Kingston, was ordered held for grand jury action after he waived examination during arraignment before Justice of the Peace Harold E. Macholdt of the town of Ulster on a burglary, third degree charge.

Stokeley was arrested on Sunday by Trooper R. I. Ryan of the Kingston station and Trooper John Metzer, BCI, of Highland, who charged him with entering the home of Anthony Diliberto on the Ulster Landing road and taking a radio, hand lights, blankets and other items valued at about $200. Some of the items was recovered from the Hudson river where, according to the state police allegation, the defendant apparently threw them.

McCarranDoesNot

an alien probably would engage in subversive activities.

Critical of Law

The President himself has been critical of the law. In his State of the Union message he said "it does, in fact, discriminate," and he added:

"I am therefore requesting the Congress to review this legislation and to enact a statute that will . . . guard our legitimate national interests and be faithful to our basic ideas of freedom and fairness to all."

The administration, however, presented no detailed suggestions for amending the law.

McCarran offered no details of what has fostered his avowed belief the President will stay neutral during efforts to change the law which are almost certain to be made at the next session of Congress. He said "statements President Eisenhower has made" convince him the President will play a passive role.

Campaign Underway

McCarran said a "definite campaign" is underway "to discredit the act by those who want to open the floodgates to promiscuous immigration."

This campaign, he said, was started by minority groups "but was carried forward" when President Truman appointed a commission to see what was wrong with the act.

"That group," he continued, "is today heading other groups around the country to tear down the act."

The commission was headed by Philip D. Perlman, Truman's solicitor general.

Knots Should Be Shellacked

Inferior soft woods often have knots. They will show through any number of coats of paint as dark stains unless they are shellacked before paint is applied.

Will Open Booth Bids September 17

Bids will be opened in Albany at 10:30 a. m., Sept. 17 for the construction of 117 toll booths for the New York State Thruway system, the state public works department announced today.

The state estimate is $680,000. The booths will be erected at important interchanges along the route including those in the Kingston area. Contractors who bid will be required to deposit $35,000.

Reds Say 400 POWs

munists had asked at a meeting of the War Prisoner Repatriation Commission what the UN commander intended to do about 250 Chinese it claimed were being held back.

Army Secretary Stevens recently said the UN command was holding back the 250 until it finds out whether the Reds intend to release all allied POWs.

While the exchange went into its last emotion-packed days, an authoriative source told of Communist Red Cross workers who appeared more determined to generate propaganda than comfort Red prisoners.

The source, who asked that his name be withheld, said that in two weeks the Communist Red Cross teams have made only two brief visits to Red war prisoner compounds on Koje island.

Instead, he said, they spent most of their time complaining about interference with their work while comfort packages of cigarettes and meats gathered dust in warehouses.

Three groups of neutral nations investigators left Panmunjom for South Korea to investigate Red charges of UN interference with these workers.

Bank Robbery Not Like Last Week's

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—Frederick Prosser says he was impressed by accounts of last week's successful $191,000 bank robbery in nearby Floral Park, N. Y., and decided to try it himself.

But things didn't go too well yesterday when, police say, he made the attempt. Officials said this is why:

For one thing, he made off with only $6,360 from the Washington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association. For another, it took only 10 minutes to catch him and recover the money.

Prosser, 28, a parolee working for an engraving company, entered the office when about 50 persons were present. He shoved a paper bag and a note demanding money through a teller window to Miss Marie Theofanis.

She put the money in the bag, and the robber strode out. She quickly pulled an alarm lever under her counter and shouted that she had been robbed.

Two employes — Chief Clerk Ralph Esposito, 34, of (52-18 Roosevelt avenue) Woodside, Queens, and receptionist Joseph Anderson, 42, of Teaneck, N. J.—dashed after him. Off duty Patrolman Joseph G. Gray, 32, was passing by, heard the commotion, joined in the chase and made the capture.

Police said it turned out that Prosser, who said he lives in the Bronx (893 Morris avenue), was armed with a hammer but no gun.

He was booked on a robbery charge.

Injured in Collision

James Jones, 34, of 14 Ann street suffered cuts on his face and over his right eye in a minor accident on Route 32 south of Kingston about 6:30 p. m. Monday, the sheriff's office reported. The automobile driven by Jones was in collision with one driven by Floyd Colden of 32 Liberty street, according to the report.

Walter Kirchofer Is Killed in Jet Collision Friday

Aviation Cadet Walter A. Kirchofer, Jr., formerly of Kingston, was killed over the weekend in a collision of jet airplanes at Craig Air Force Base, Ala.

Official announcement of his death was received in Herkimer by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Kirchofer, who resided in the Ponckhockie section of Kingston previous to moving upstate.

Walter A. Kirchofer, Sr., father of the victim, was a compositor on The Freeman when he resided in this city, and also served as manager of Reade's Kingston Theatre, Wall street.

The accident occurred Friday. The air base chaplain notified Mr. and Mrs. Kirchofer late Friday night that their son was missing following a collision of jet planes, and at 2:30 Saturday morning the chaplain called Mr. and Mrs. Kirchofer by telephone, notifying them their son had been found dead.

Was Near Graduation

Cadet Kirchofer would have graduated in two weeks from the jet fighter school.

In addition to his parents, the aviation cadet is survived by four brothers, Bruce, Roger, Robert and Gary Kirchofer; four sisters, Alice, Linda, Cheryl and Patricia, of Herkimer; his grandmother, Mrs. Oscar Way, Sr., of Hudson; an aunt, Mrs. Leroy Wolcott, of Hudson; two uncles, Werner Kirchofer, of Hudson, and Richard Way, of Columbiaville.

The body of Cadet Kirchofer, who was scheduled to graduate September 11 from the Advanced Jet Training School, will be taken to Herkimer for burial, according to present plans, which are indefinite pending further information.

Enlisted in 1950

A 1950 graduate of Herkimer High School, Sgt. Kirchofer enlisted in the air force in July, 1950. He received his training at Lackland Air Base, Tex., and attended the Radar Mechanics' School at Pope Base, Fort Bragg, N. C. In November, 1951, he was promoted to sergeant.

In December 1951, his parents learned he was taking part in collecting gifts for the biggest Christmas party in the United States at Fort Bragg. The men stationed there planned to give presents to every one of the more than 4,000 orphans in the state. Mr. Kirchofer collected more than 200 gifts.

Selected for OTC

In January, 1952, it was announced that he had been selected for OTC School at Kessler Field, an advanced base for control tower operation of radar. In August of that year, he completed the course in Mississippi and an air cadet course at Pope Base. He was then transferred to San Angelo, Tex., for his final test before winning his wings as a pilot.

In June, Sgt. Kirchofer, an aviation cadet, reported to the Williams Air Force Base at Chandler, Ariz., for jet pilot training to fly the T-28, dual-seat, conventional-type trainer and the T-33, only dual-seat jet trainer. After six months of intensive flying and training, he would have earned his wings and then would have been assigned to duty with an Air Force squadron. He was transferred to the advanced school in Alabama about three months ago.

Two Arrested Are Wanted in Area

Two men sought by authorities in this area on forgery charges have been arrested on similar charges by state police at Fonda, Montgomery county, troopers of the Highland station said today.

The men were identified as Julio Traniagliro, 35, of 340 East 13th street, New York, and Angelo Giraffa, 44, of 202 avenue A, New York.

Highland state police said they hold warrants for the arrest of the two men on forgery charges in this area, and are forwarding the warrants to Fonda as detainers to be executed following disposition of the cases there. Troopers said Poughkeepsie police also hold warrants against the men.

Reliance to Launch Special Steel Barge

A steel craft designed to transport long bars of steel will be launched at 2 p. m., tomorrow by the Reliance Marine Transportation and Construction Corp., 615 Abeel street.

The boat with a 1,250 gross-ton capacity is 114 feet, six inches long; 42 feet, six inches wide, and 14 feet six inches high. It was built to specifications of the American Bureau of Shipping, and will carry steel on the Hudson river, New York harbor, Long Island Sound and the Great Lakes.

Ground Observation Registration Blank

Because of an acute need of aircraft spotters to keep the Kingston Ground Observation post in continuous operation, Mrs. George Dewey Logan, post supervisor, has again requested The Freeman to publish a registration blank which volunteers may use to offer their services to the post.

Needed especially are men for the early morning (midnight to 2 a. m.; 2 to 4 a. m. and 4 to 6 a. m. shifts), and women for the daytime shifts. Reserves are needed to insure continuous operation of the post in event of illness or unavoidable absences.

Volunteers normally serve one two-hour shift a week. "There are 168 hours in a week; all we ask is two of them," Mrs. Logan has said.

Persons returning the blank to Mrs. Logan at 68 Garden street, Kingston, will be contacted and advised when and where to report for fingerprinting.

Housewife Tells How She Aided Smuggling of Man

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—A British housewife told a court today how she dressed her young Italian lover as her 12-year-old daughter to smuggle him into England.

But then, she said, he started running after other women so she wrote and told the police.

The Italian, Leono Cirenza, 31, pleaded guilty to breaking the Alien Law when he entered Britain.

Barbara Mancketlow, 43, pleaded guilty to harboring him here.

Mrs. Mancketlow said she met Cirenza when he was a prisoner of war in Britain.

She visited him in Italy in 1947 and 1948; and in 1949 they decided to return together. She has a passport for her 12-year-old daughter. When they got to Turin, said Mrs. Mancketlow, Cirenza dressed as a woman and traveled that way to Calais.

Then she put a traveling rug over his head and told any one who asked that he was her daughter and that she was sick.

Magistrate Geoffrey Raphael ordered Cirenza held to await hearing of an extradition order and fined Mrs. Manchetlow 25 pounds ($70.)

Lily Pons Pooh-Poohs Dior's Shorter Dresses

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—French born opera singer Lily Pons told newsmen today she thinks the shorter dresses advocated by Paris designer Christian Dior are off key.

Returning aboard the Queen Mary after four months in France and England, the petite star said:

"The short dress is silly for any size of woman, petite or large. It's ugly. It's out of proportion.

"Women in America have the most beautiful legs in the world, but kneecaps are never pretty."

And, if the new style is intended to save material, she said: "We don't have shortages. There's no reason for it."

She said she would make some recordings here, then go to Palm Springs, Calif., where she and her husband, Andre Kostelantez, are building a home.

Three Per Cent Cultivated

Only about three per cent of Egypt is cultivated, the area being almost entirely along the Nile, where about 13,000,000 persons live.

Phone Company Wins Safety Award

For an outstanding safety record during 1952, the New York Telephone Company has just received the National Safety Council's Award of Honor, according to C. E. Burnett, manager here.

The New York Telephone Company shares the award with other Bell System companies. The same award was made last year for the companies' record in 1950-1951. The Award of Honor is the highest honor the National Safety Council can bestow.

Planned Program

"We give constant attention to safety in all departments," Burnett said. "If you could follow one of our telephone men through a week's work in Kingston, you would realize that our safety record isn't a matter of luck. Every hook and every piece of equipment or material, and every work operation has been analyzed for safety. That is why, to take a simple example, a lineman is taught never to drop an unneeded tool to the ground. Everything should be raised or lowered on a hand line. And for another example, a telephone worker is taught never to use the door on the traffic side of his truck. We call it the "sui-side" door.

Safety Schools

Every new man goes to a safety school, soon after he is hired. Every foreman gathers all his men into a half-hour meeting once every week, and at intervals the men go to longer sessions where films and visual aids are used to point out hazards. When an accident does occur, it is carefully analyzed and the men discuss it along with accidents that have happened elsewhere.

"Men who drive company cars get periodic special tests and instructions, and once every five years every driver is being given a comprehensive physical examination. We spend a lot of time and effort on safety, but it pays."

Chamber's Deed Fund Is $980.70 Collected to Date

A total of $980.70 has been collected to date by the Citizen's Committee for the purchase of the Chambers deed.

The document, dated June 5, 1652, is the first recorded transfer of area land to Thomas Chambers, founder of the first settlement here.

The total collected toward its purchase includes money collected by the pupils of the Kingston schools, contributions by a limited number of citizens and organizations, and the amount set aside for the purpose by Kingston's 300th Anniversary, Inc.

Purchase price of the deed is $1,050, which is one-third the officially appraised value of the document.

To Be Used For Case

Any funds collected over the purchase price will be used to help defray the coast of a permanent display case, according to Albert Kurdt, treasurer of the Citizens' Committee.

"The Chambers deed will be an important attraction for visitors to our outstanding Senate House and museum," Kurdt said. "It is one of the most important documents of its kind in the country and will increase in value. We can all feel just a little more proud of our city after this document is in the possession of our Senate House Association and we can say that it belongs to the city of Kingston."

Contributions toward the purchase of the deed can be sent to Kurdt at the office of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Checks should be made payable to the Chambers' Deed Committee. Mrs. G. V. D. Hutton is chairman and Harry Rigby, Jr., secretary, of the committee.

Change in Movies Date

The community movies at Flatbush Reformed Church will be held on Thursday this week, instead of the usual Wednesday date. The movies will be shown at 8 p. m. following a turkey dinner.

Prosser, 28, a parolee working for an engraving company, entered the office when about 50 persons were present. He shoved a paper bag and a note demanding money through a teller window to Miss Marie Theofanis.

She put the money in the bag, and the robber strode out. She quickly pulled an alarm lever under her counter and shouted that she had been robbed.

Two employes — Chief Clerk Ralph Esposito, 34, of (52-18 Roosevelt avenue) Woodside, Queens, and receptionist Joseph Anderson, 42, of Teaneck, N. J.—dashed after him. Off duty Patrolman Joseph G. Gray, 32, was passing by, heard the commotion, joined in the chase and made the capture.

Police said it turned out that Prosser, who said he lives in the Bronx (893 Morris avenue), was armed with a hammer but no gun.

He was booked on a robbery charge.

Injured in Collision

James Jones, 34, of 14 Ann street suffered cuts on his face and over his right eye in a minor accident on Route 32 south of Kingston about 6:30 p. m. Monday, the sheriff's office reported. The automobile driven by Jones was in collision with one driven by Floyd Colden of 32 Liberty street, according to the report.

Walter Kirchofer Is Killed in Jet Collision Friday

Aviation Cadet Walter A. Kirchofer, Jr., formerly of Kingston, was killed over the weekend in a collision of jet airplanes at Craig Air Force Base, Ala.

Official announcement of his death was received in Herkimer by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Kirchofer, who resided in the Ponckhockie section of Kingston previous to moving upstate.

Walter A. Kirchofer, Sr., father of the victim, was a compositor on The Freeman when he resided in this city, and also served as manager of Reade's Kingston Theatre, Wall street.

The accident occurred Friday. The air base chaplain notified Mr. and Mrs. Kirchofer late Friday night that their son was missing following a collision of jet planes, and at 2:30 Saturday morning the chaplain called Mr. and Mrs. Kirchofer by telephone, notifying them their son had been found dead.

Was Near Graduation

Cadet Kirchofer would have graduated in two weeks from the jet fighter school.

In addition to his parents, the aviation cadet is survived by four brothers, Bruce, Roger, Robert and Gary Kirchofer; four sisters, Alice, Linda, Cheryl and Patricia, of Herkimer; his grandmother, Mrs. Oscar Way, Sr., of Hudson; an aunt, Mrs. Leroy Wolcott, of Hudson; two uncles, Werner Kirchofer, of Hudson, and Richard Way, of Columbiaville.

The body of Cadet Kirchofer, who was scheduled to graduate September 11 from the Advanced Jet Training School, will be taken to Herkimer for burial, according to present plans, which are indefinite pending further information.

Enlisted in 1950

A 1950 graduate of Herkimer High School, Sgt. Kirchofer enlisted in the air force in July, 1950. He received his training at Lackland Air Base, Tex., and attended the Radar Mechanics' School at Pope Base, Fort Bragg, N. C. In November, 1951, he was promoted to sergeant.

In December 1951, his parents learned he was taking part in collecting gifts for the biggest Christmas party in the United States at Fort Bragg. The men stationed there planned to give presents to every one of the more than 4,000 orphans in the state. Mr. Kirchofer collected more than 200 gifts.

Selected for OTC

In January, 1952, it was announced that he had been selected for OTC School at Kessler Field, an advanced base for control tower operation of radar. In August of that year, he completed the course in Mississippi and an air cadet course at Pope Base. He was then transferred to San Angelo, Tex., for his final test before winning his wings as a pilot.

In June, Sgt. Kirchofer, an aviation cadet, reported to the Williams Air Force Base at Chandler, Ariz., for jet pilot training to fly the T-28, dual-seat, conventional-type trainer and the T-33, only dual-seat jet trainer. After six months of intensive flying and training, he would have earned his wings and then would have been assigned to duty with an Air Force squadron. He was transferred to the advanced school in Alabama about three months ago.

Two Arrested Are Wanted in Area

Two men sought by authorities in this area on forgery charges have been arrested on similar charges by state police at Fonda, Montgomery county, troopers of the Highland station said today.

The men were identified as Julio Traniagliro, 35, of 340 East 13th street, New York, and Angelo Giraffa, 44, of 202 avenue A, New York.

Highland state police said they hold warrants for the arrest of the two men on forgery charges in this area, and are forwarding the warrants to Fonda as detainers to be executed following disposition of the cases there. Troopers said Poughkeepsie police also hold warrants against the men.

The boat with a 1,250 gross-ton capacity is 114 feet, six inches long; 42 feet, six inches wide, and 14 feet six inches high. It was built to specifications of the American Bureau of Shipping, and will carry steel on the Hudson river, New York harbor, Long Island Sound and the Great Lakes.

Ground Observation Registration Blank

Because of an acute need of aircraft spotters to keep the Kingston Ground Observation post in continuous operation, Mrs. George Dewey Logan, post supervisor, has again requested The Freeman to publish a registration blank which volunteers may use to offer their services to the post.

Needed especially are men for the early morning (midnight to 2 a. m.; 2 to 4 a. m. and 4 to 6 a. m. shifts), and women for the daytime shifts. Reserves are needed to insure continuous operation of the post in event of illness or unavoidable absences.

Volunteers normally serve one two-hour shift a week. "There are 168 hours in a week; all we ask is two of them," Mrs. Logan has said.

Persons returning the blank to Mrs. Logan at 68 Garden street, Kingston, will be contacted and advised when and where to report for fingerprinting.

Housewife Tells How She Aided Smuggling of Man

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—A British housewife told a court today how she dressed her young Italian lover as her 12-year-old daughter to smuggle him into England.

But then, she said, he started running after other women so she wrote and told the police.

The Italian, Leono Cirenza, 31, pleaded guilty to breaking the Alien Law when he entered Britain.

Barbara Mancketlow, 43, pleaded guilty to harboring him here.

Mrs. Mancketlow said she met Cirenza when he was a prisoner of war in Britain.

She visited him in Italy in 1947 and 1948; and in 1949 they decided to return together. She has a passport for her 12-year-old daughter. When they got to Turin, said Mrs. Mancketlow, Cirenza dressed as a woman and traveled that way to Calais.

Then she put a traveling rug over his head and told any one who asked that he was her daughter and that she was sick.

Magistrate Geoffrey Raphael ordered Cirenza held to await hearing of an extradition order and fined Mrs. Manchetlow 25 pounds ($70.)

Lily Pons Pooh-Poohs Dior's Shorter Dresses

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—French born opera singer Lily Pons told newsmen today she thinks the shorter dresses advocated by Paris designer Christian Dior are off key.

Returning aboard the Queen Mary after four months in France and England, the petite star said:

"The short dress is silly for any size of woman, petite or large. It's ugly. It's out of proportion.

"Women in America have the most beautiful legs in the world, but kneecaps are never pretty."

And, if the new style is intended to save material, she said: "We don't have shortages. There's no reason for it."

She said she would make some recordings here, then go to Palm Springs, Calif., where she and her husband, Andre Kostelantez, are building a home.

Three Per Cent Cultivated

Only about three per cent of Egypt is cultivated, the area being almost entirely along the Nile, where about 13,000,000 persons live.

Phone Company Wins Safety Award

For an outstanding safety record during 1952, the New York Telephone Company has just received the National Safety Council's Award of Honor, according to C. E. Burnett, manager here.

The New York Telephone Company shares the award with other Bell System companies. The same award was made last year for the companies' record in 1950-1951. The Award of Honor is the highest honor the National Safety Council can bestow.

Planned Program

"We give constant attention to safety in all departments," Burnett said. "If you could follow one of our telephone men through a week's work in Kingston, you would realize that our safety record isn't a matter of luck. Every hook and every piece of equipment or material, and every work operation has been analyzed for safety. That is why, to take a simple example, a lineman is taught never to drop an unneeded tool to the ground. Everything should be raised or lowered on a hand line. And for another example, a telephone worker is taught never to use the door on the traffic side of his truck. We call it the "sui-side" door.

Safety Schools

Every new man goes to a safety school soon after he is hired. Every foreman gathers all his men into a half-hour meeting once every week, and at intervals the men go to longer sessions where films and visual aids are used to point out hazards. When an accident does occur, it is carefully analyzed and the men discuss it along with accidents that have happened elsewhere.

"Men who drive company cars get periodic special tests and instructions, and once every five years every driver is being given a comprehensive physical examination. We spend a lot of time and effort on safety, but it pays."

Chamber's Deed Fund Is $980.70 Collected to Date

A total of $980.70 has been collected to date by the Citizen's Committee for the purchase of the Chambers deed.

The document, dated June 5, 1652, is the first recorded transfer of area land to Thomas Chambers, founder of the first settlement here.

The total collected toward its purchase includes money collected by the pupils of the Kingston schools, contributions by a limited number of citizens and organizations, and the amount set aside for the purpose by Kingston's 300th Anniversary, Inc.

Purchase price of the deed is $1,050, which is one-third the officially appraised value of the document.

To Be Used For Case

Any funds collected over the purchase price will be used to help defray the coast of a permanent display case, according to Albert Kurdt, treasurer of the Citizens' Committee.

"The Chambers deed will be an important attraction for visitors to our outstanding Senate House and museum," Kurdt said. "It is one of the most important documents of its kind in the country and will increase in value. We can all feel just a little more proud of our city after this document is in the possession of our Senate House Association and we can say that it belongs to the city of Kingston."

Contributions toward the purchase of the deed can be sent to Kurdt at the office of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Checks should be made payable to the Chambers' Deed Committee. Mrs. G. V. D. Hutton is chairman and Harry Rigby, Jr., secretary, of the committee.

Change in Movies Date
